Big rush to other carriers expected

United cancels all holiday flights

by KURT BAER

Holiday travelers planning to fly United Airlines will have difficulty finding alternate airline reservations in the wake of United's announced cancellation Wednesday of all its regularly scheduled flights through Christmas Eve

United, whose national headquarters are in Elk Grove Township, announced the cancellations after negotiations between the company and the striking International Assoc. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers broke off indefinitely.

United also announced a 50 per cent cut in pay, effective Saturday, for all nonunion employes if no strike settlement is reached.

United's 12,500 nonunion, nonmanagement employes will have their work scheduled halved, while its 6,800 management employes will continue to work full shifts at half salary.

A CHECK OF other major air lines Wednesday evening showed the number of available seats on holiday flights was dwindling, and the potential for scheduling additional flights was limited.

A United spokesman estimated that as many as 130,000 persons normally would board United planes Dec. 20, the company's anticipated peak travel day. Nearly 23,000 of those passengers would use Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

"We recommend that passengers with reservations (on United) feel free to make arrangements with other carriers of their choice," the spokesman said.

The company Tuesday laid off 13,000 other workers — including 5,200 pilots and 7,000 flight attendants — as a result of the walkout which began Saturday. A total of 16,700 union mechanics, flight dispatchers, food and ramp service workers have been idled.

United's charter flights have been canceled through Jan. 1.

DAVID H. STOWE, chairman of the National Mediation Board which Wednesday recessed contract talks indefinitely, said that negotiations will resume — at the request of either party — when mediators decide that progress can be made.

Issues in the dispute are reported to be pay, pensions and part-time employment.

"It is with sincere regret that we have had to take this action, particularly in view of the inconvenience that will be felt by the traveling public as we approach the holiday season," mediators said.

"The posture of the parties at this time, however, causes us to feel that they should have the time required to reevaluate their positions."

SPOKESMEN FOR other airlines said that some extra flights are scheduled routinely to accommodate holiday travelers.

But a limited number of airplanes and crews will prevent the carriers from greatly expanding their operations to carry passengers who normally would fly on United, the nation's largest airline, they said.

"We'll probably try to do a little squeezing," said a spokesman for Delta Air Lines. "But most of the other carriers, like us, already have planned additional flights — long before the United strike."

At Trans World Airlines — which competes with United on routes to Washington, D. C., New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas — a spokesman said that seats are still available to most destinations.

"Undoubtedly things are going to get tougher and tougher as we get closer to the holiday. We'll go to the maximum possible."

At Dist. 25 meeting

Residents tackle enrollment decline

Finances and staff cuts were two problems tackled by residents Wednesday as they discussed the impact of declining enrollment on Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

About 250 residents attended Wednesday's meeting, the fourth scheduled by the board of education to solicit the public's reaction to possible school closings, reductions in staff and increased taxes.

The district is expected to lose 31 per cent of its students by 1984, which would mean a $3.9 million financial deficit that year because of a consequent drop in state aid. A 150-page consultant's report released last month listed several alternatives for the district and recommended the closing of four schools, staff cuts and increased class sizes.

"WE ARE INTERESTED in the values you people place on education, and we want to know where to go from here," board member Edith Jolly told residents as she presented the consultant's report.

"Can Dist. 25 get more money from the state?" resident Donald Kjerland asked. As enrollment declines, the state, under the current school-aid formula, will cut the district's state funds.

The chances of a revision in the state-aid formula now are slim, said Supt. Donald Strong. The legislature has rejected increases in the formula, and last month it failed to override cuts in state school funds made in Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of school appropriations for next year. How long that situation will continue in the legislature is anyone's guess, Strong said.

"My political guess," he said, is in three or four years "it is inevitable that they must take action." He added, "I think it is equally inevitable that it isn't going to happen right away."

THE DISTRICT'S financial problem is immediate. Next year's deficit is estimated at $1.3 million.

The district can raise the local tax rate as much as 42 cents per $100 assessed valuation of property in the district. Such an increase, if approved by voters in a referendum, would generate between $800,000 and $1 million in additional revenue each year.

Parent Mary Pizzuto advocated an increase in taxes as opposed to increases in class size or cuts in educational programs. "I hope parents wouldn't be so selfish or so cheap they wouldn't vote to give their children a good education," she said.

Parent Liz Roschman objected to reduction in teaching staff as a solution to the district's financial problem. Administrative jobs should be cut first, she said. The average teacher's salary in the district is $14,000 while the average administrator's salary is $22,000.

Resident William Daletski, who is an assistant principal at Hersey High School, had an opposing opinion. Because the district's biggest expense is salaries, it could afford to maintain all its schools by simply cutting its staff.

Parent Laverne Lavers objected to staff cuts except as "a last resort." 'Children are not educated by buildings, they are educated by teachers," she said.

Cop's suspension over; returns to duty

Arlington Heights patrolman Ronald McClaskey will return to duty today following a five-day suspension without pay.

McClaskey, 38, was suspended following an accidental shooting incident at the Robin Hood Restaurant and Lounge in the Northpoint Shopping Center last week.

According to police investigation, McClaskey and two companions were in the restaurant discussing guns when the patrolman, a 10-year veteran, offered an automatic pistol to one of them for examination. When the gun was returned it discharged and the bullet went through McClaskey's hand and struck his companion's foot.

No other charges were filed in the incident, police said.

Sox staying in Chicago; Veeck pulls first trade

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Bill Veeck finally made it, but it was close. And immediately after taking over control of the Chicago White Sox Wednesday night he electrified everybody by engineering a five-player deal that sent 20-game winner Jim Kaat to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Out of baseball the past 14 years, the colorful 61-year-old Veeck finally succeeded in his three-month attempt to buy the White Sox.

The American League owners first voted to reject his bid by a single vote, but prodded into casting a second ballot, they finally approved Veeck's application.

Veeck needed nine affirmative votes from the 12 owners. Only eight supported him on the first ballot, three voted against and one abstained. On the second ballot, Veeck carried the day 10-2.

"I don't really care about the first round vote," said the elated Veeck, who is taking over the White Sox for the second time. "All I care about is how it turned out.

"It's not often that a 61-year-old one-legged man gets started off in a new life."

Approval of Veeck blocked an attempt by a Seattle group, led by entertainer Danny Kaye, to purchase the White Sox and move them to that West Coast city, which is holding an impending suit over the American League stemming from the pullout of

Harper motion may be dropped

Harper College Trustee Robert Rausch is expected to withdraw his motion tonight to seat a faculty member as an ex-officio member of the board of Trustees. The Rausch resolution, first made in September, would seat a faculty member elected by his colleagues on the board of trustees in a nonvoting position. The faculty representative could not attend executive sessions of the board, but would serve as a board resource. Rausch said Wednesday that his proposal "would engender a bitterness (among board members) that would be counterproductive. I believe, frankly, that I would have a majority, but those who oppose it do so more bitterly than I thought wise," he added. Rausch said he will propose, instead, a plan to provide a fixed slot on the agenda for faculty response to the board. Currently, Faculty Senate Pres. David Macaulay attends board meetings as an unofficial faculty representative. He is sometimes called upon by board members for his opinion on issues before them. The seating of a faculty member has been a political football for the Harper board for several years. The board voted last year to seat then-Faculty Senate Pres. Robert Powell as an ex-officio member, but then rescinded its decision, deciding instead to form a communications committee to work for better board-faculty relations.

Golf Rd. may reopen Dec. 20

Golf Road, between Higgins and Barrington roads in Hoffman Estates, may be reopened by Dec. 20, state highway department officials said Wednesday. Major road work involving the widening from two to four lanes of the 3-mile section began in late September. Traffic along the route since then has been detoured to Higgins Road. Ron Lehner, assistant area programmer for the state highway department, Wednesday said officials are hopeful remaining work will be completed by Dec. 20 to permit reopening the road. The $7 million Golf Road widening project is part of a major improvement program for the state thoroughfare. Another section of Golf Road from Barrington Road west to the Kane County line also is planned for repaving and widening.

Baldacinni keeps job

Des Plaines Building Comr. William Baldaccini was on the job Wednesday following a four-hour closed door session Tuesday night with city officials to discuss problems in the building department. Sources said the meeting was called because there was a campaign afoot by several aldermen to fire Baldaccini. In recent weeks Baldaccini has been criticized publicly by several city council members over the handling of matters in the building department. When contacted by The Herald Wednesday, however, Baldaccini confirmed that he "still is a city employe" but would make no comment on what transpired at the meeting. The closed door meeting was called by Ald. Carmen Sarlo, 6th, who also refused comment. He is one of the aldermen that has criticized Baldaccini recently. Mayor Herbert H. Behrel would not divulge what was discussed at the meeting, but indicated the problems between Baldaccini and some of the aldermen have been resolved.

Suburbanites seek candidates for Fulle seat

by WANDALYN RICE

Candidates for the Cook County Board seat vacated by Comr. Floyd Fulle will present their credentials at public hearings of the five remaining suburban commissioners after Jan. 1.

The five GOP commissioners issued a statement Wednesday announcing open presentation sessions for candidates will be scheduled after the holidays. In addition, the commissioners invited Republican Party organizations and civic groups to recommend candidates.

The statement said, "The sixth commissioner will be chosen to best represent all the taxpayers in suburban Cook County."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT CAME as officials of the Congress of Cook County Homeowners' Associations was polling its board of directors on a resolution urging them to name a resident of an unincorporated area to replace Fulle.

The congress, which represents about 95 homeowners' associations in unincorporated areas, "feels very strongly that with a commissioner from the unincorporated area on the board we would have a much stronger voice than we have now," said John Gilligan, president of the congress and head of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assoc.

Gilligan said such a commissioner is needed because many county actions, including zoning decisions, affect only residents of unincorporated areas. He said the congress will not nominate a specific candidate, but "some of our board of directors may individually suggest someone."

Comr. Carl Hansen of Elk Grove Village said the congress's recommendation would be considered when the commissioners view candidates. "We'll listen to every applicant, and anybody who wants to come before us with suggestions will be able to."

HANSEN SAID potential candidates or persons who want to suggest candidates should contract any one of the suburban commissioners at their county board offices on the fifth floor of the county building. Besides Hansen, the other suburban commissioners are Ronald Larsen, Joseph Woods, Harold Tyrrell and Mary McDonald.

Among candidates already mentioned as possible successors to Fulle are Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor; Sheldon Gardner, an aide to State's Atty. Bernard Carey; Dan Baldino, member of the Regional Transportation Authority Board; and Wayne Anderson, an attorney from Des Plaines who ran unsuccessfully for county treasurer in 1974.

Fulle resigned his seat on the county board Tuesday after he was sentenced to five years in federal prison for extortion and income tax evasion. He was convicted of accepting bribes in exchange for approval of zoning by the county board.

Panel's tax cut vote sets up veto battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee Wednesday approved 14 to 4 a six-month extension of 1975 tax cuts, setting up a veto fight by sweeping aside President Ford's proposed $395 billion fiscal 1977 spending ceiling.

Two of the committee's seven Republicans — Sens. Bob Packwood of Oregon and Bill Brock of Tennessee — deserted Ford on an 11-5 vote not to include the spending ceiling in the bill, and four Republicans voted for the final bill.

While changes would be made from 1975 in the method of calculating taxes, the end result would be to extend 1975 tax rates at exactly the same level through next June. The committee, in fact, voted not to change withholding tables at all.

The bill is expected to reach the Senate floor next week where it is assured of passage. It then must be reconciled with a similar House tax cut, after which it goes to the White House for an almost certain presidential veto.

A number of Republicans apparently lack enthusiasm for Ford's hardline position, and it may be difficult for the White House to gain the necessary one-third of either house to sustain the veto.

But while Republicans appeared divided, Democrats exhibited a show of strength when the Senate Democratic Caucus voted unanimously — with Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia abstaining — to reject any spending ceiling until the normal budget process calls for one next May, and to send Ford the same bill again if he calls a special session as he has threatened.

The Caucus also voted to take some action on the House-passed tax "reform" bill by next July 1, when Congress almost certainly will vote to extend tax cuts through the end of the year.

The Finance Committee bill would result in a loss of $6.4 billion for the Treasury compared to the revenues that would be lost if no bill passed and current tax cuts were allowed to expire on Jan. 1.

Both the maximums and minimums for the standard deduction would be increased by the Finance Committee bill — from 1975's minimums of $1,600 for singles and $1,900 for couples to $1,800 and $2,200, and from the current maximums of $2,300 and $2,600 to $2,500 and $2,900.

The current $30 tax credit for each taxpayer and dependent would be increased to $45 for the taxpayer and $30 for each dependent.

Ford again Wednesday told somewhat unenthusiastic Republican congressional leaders that he would not agree to a compromise. He remained adamant in his intention to veto any tax bill that does not contain the spending ceiling.

The two conflicting positions increased likelihood of a veto fight between Ford and Congress, with possibly a post-Christmas special session. If no bill is passed before Jan. 1, everyone's withholding taxes will rise as 1975's temporary tax cuts expire.

'Significant' Hoffa leads claimed

RALPH B. GUY

DETROIT (UPI) — U. S. Attorney Ralph B. Guy said Wednesday the FBI has developed "significant leads" in its investigation into the disappearance of former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa but that he does not expect arrests or indictments in the near future.

Guy met newsmen a few minutes after a U. S. District Court judge granted immunity from prosecution to the brother of a New Jersey man who has figured in the investigation, thus forcing him to testify — under penalty of contempt charges — before a federal grand jury probing the Hoffa case.

Judge Ralph M. Freeman ordered Stephen Andretta of Little Ferry, N. J., to appear before the grand jury at 10 a.m. Thursday.

At his news conference, Guy said the FBI probe extended over several states and probably would take "some time" to complete.

But Guy refused to discuss any specific leads or suspects in the case.

He said he wanted to clear up "speculation and confusion" stirred by recent developments.

One development, Guy said, was speculation last week that some investigators believe Hoffa, who vanished July 30, was slain, taken to New Jersey and buried in a gangland burial site.

Another development, he said, was a court-ordered identification lineup last weekend near Detroit at which Andreta's brother, Thomas A. Andreta, appeared with two other New Jersey Teamsters figures, Salvatore Briguglio, 47, and his brother Gabriel, 38.

All three men were named in another Detroit federal court last week as active participants in the Hoffa disappearance. Another witness said he witnessed the Hoffa abduction outside a suburban restaurant. The lineup was conducted to see if the New Jersey three were the same men he saw take Hoffa.

Guy refused to discuss the status of the Andrettas and Briguglios.

In New York, meantime, Teamsters union stalwart Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, a major figure in the investigation of the disappearance of James R. Hoffa, was indicted on charges of conspiring to bribe another Teamsters official to arrange a $2 million loan from union funds.

Provenzano, 58, of Clifton, N. J., former president of New Jersey Teamsters Local 560 in Union City, N. J., until his conviction of extortion in 1963, was arrested in Hallandale, Fla.

Bail was set at $25,000 in Miami for Provenzano, who served four years in prison on the extortion charge. He returned to office last Dec. 1 as the local's secretary-treasurer.

William Aronwald, head of the Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime, said the charge against Provenzano had nothing to do with the investigation of the Hoffa disappearance.

Senate OKs loan money for New York

The Senate voted 72 to 23 Wednesday to provide money for loans to keep New York City from going bankrupt, but Gov. Hugh Carey said two agencies of New York state now face the prospect of defaulting on their bonds and asked the Federal Reserve for an emergency loan. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the bill could reach President Ford for his signature Thursday, but that seemed optimistic because the House must still concur.

Cyclamate not a feared cancer agent

A panel of scientists said Wednesday the evidence shows the artificial sweetener cyclamate is not a strong cancer causing agent, as was feared in 1969 when it was ordered off the market. Although they emphasized their conclusion was preliminary, three of the scientists said the test evidence available was not sufficient to label the cyclamate as a cancer causer.

Proper control by Congress hit

FBI chief asks spying guidelines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley accused Congress Wednesday of failing to exercise proper control over his bureau and urged it to draft clear guidelines on just how much spying the FBI may do to protect national security.

"No one who is looking for the cause of our failures should confine its search solely to the FBI or even to the executive branch," Kelley said in testimony before the Senate intelligence committee.

"The Congress itself has long possessed the mechanism for FBI oversight, yet seldom has it been exercised."

He said Congress should give the bureau "a legislative charter, expressing congressional determination of intelligence jurisdiction for the FBI."

He also agreed with a committee member's suggestion that any Presidential order for a potentially improper FBI surveillance operation should be made "in writing" and "would be available to any Congressional oversight committee."

Kelley said he agreed the FBI had committed "errors of judgment" under the late J. Edgar Hoover in investigating Americans it considered potential subversives. But he said these were the honest mistakes of well motivated men "besieged" by demands to combat a wave of New Left and antiwar violence.

"The FBI employes involved in these programs did what they felt was expected of them by the President, the attorney general, the Congress and the people of the United States." he said.

Elsewhere in Washington, McGeorge Bundy, former special aide to President Lyndon Johnson, said some CIA covert operations have cost more than they were worth, but certain ones may be needed to check international terrorism and avoid nuclear danger.

Bundy, now head of the Ford Foundation, also told the House Select Committee on Intelligence that the agency's covert branch might be improved by reducing its size.

Cease-fire called in Beirut fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Warring Moslem and Christian militiamen fought inch by inch along the Beirut waterfront Wednesday for control of the richest real estate in Lebanon, leaving five of the city's luxury hotels in smoking ruins.

Even as the fires burned, Premier Rashid Karami announced on television that the two sides in the bloody factional warfare had agreed to a new cease-fire. The cease-fire deadline passed, however, with both sides trading fire last night.

Three days of fighting left more than 200 persons dead and 400 wounded, police and hospital sources said. The latest casualties brought the toll of dead and wounded in the eight-month-long civil war to nearly 5,000 dead and 11,000 wounded.

Karami said security forces would again take up positions in battle zones Thursday to keep any truce and "will do what duty demands" so the country would be at peace over the big Moslem feast of Al Adha.

Earlier, Karami called a conference of the "coordination committee" comprising representatives of all political factions and Palestinian leaders.

Leftist Moslems held a separate meeting and announced they would not sit down with their avowed enemies, the right-wing Christian Phalangist Party which had sent two representatives to the conference to join Karami, Palestinian and government security officials.

A spokesman for the Independent Nasserite faction said "we cannot sit at the same table with murderers, who say one thing in the conference room and do the opposite outside."

While the two sides refused to sit together, they battled on in the streets.

Flames and smoke from five hotels, the St. Georges, the Phoenicia, the Holiday Inn, the Alcazar and the Martinez drifted across streets littered with rubble and bodies.

Karami said the "coordination committee" had won agreement from all parties that those persons wanted for questioning by the authorities in connection with a series of killings over the weekend would be handed over.

His words caused considerable surprise in view of the leftist Moslem boycott. He did not make clear how agreement had been reached.

The desperate Lebanese government appealed to the nation's religious leaders to hand over "the culprits" behind the bloodiest flareup of fighting in eight months of warfare.

Racial fights erupt at South Boston H. S.

BOSTON (UPI) — South Boston High School began its first day of direct federal court operation Wednesday with a flurry of fistfights between black and white students.

Two black youths were hurt and three other young blacks — two girls and a boy — were arrested during what a school official described as a "tense" situation in the opening hours. The boy was arrested for biting a police officer.

Meanwhile, the NAACP charged the midnight firebombing of its Boston headquarters was in retaliation for U. S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. taking control of the school away from local authorities and placing it under federal receivership. Fire officials estimated damage at the NAACP building at about $500.

The school has long been the focus of opposition to the busing Garrity ordered to implement his desegregation program over the past two years.

At South Boston, black and white students were kept segregated as tension increased through shouted racial taunts and shoving in the hallways. One third-floor window was broken. Classes finally began about two hours late, but a number of students walked out.

Dozens of state troopers were inside the building and members of the city police Tactical Patrol Force patrolled outside, while U.S. marshals were on hand as observers. There were no crowds in the area, partially due to rainy weather.

Headmaster William Reid, who was removed along with his administrative staff by Garrity, said 405 pupils attended school Wednesday, 144 of them black. In a brief news conference on the steps of the school, Reid said he was "shocked" and "hurt" by the decision to remove him and place the school in receivership.

"I do not know what the future will hold for me," he said.

SOUTH BOSTON High School Headmaster, William Reid, center, walks from school after he and his entire staff were transferred. The school is now being run under federal court supervision.

Food will be distributed to needy families by student council members before the holidays.

Initial survey returns show:

Merchants back parking garage

Initial survey returns indicate that downtown merchants in Arlington Heights favor the construction of a parking garage in the central business district.

Fifty of 96 merchants have responded to questionnaires on the subject, said Earl Johnson, Chamber of Commerce director. Most of the responses show that downtown merchants feel a parking garage is needed and is considered feasible, he said.

Johnson will submit the results of the survey to the village board's Blue Ribbon Committee on Parking today at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

MERCHANTS POLLED also indicated that they would probably rent approximately 150 of the spaces in the garage for their employes, Johnson said.

"It's important that we not have employes using all the parking spaces on the streets downtown," Johnson said. He expects that the number of garage spaces employers would rent would total 200 if all merchants responded. "That would be a real good thing for the business district," he said.

Trustee August Bettman, chairman of the committee, said Wednesday he expects another survey will be taken to poll residents on the parking garage idea.

"It's important to see what the residents and shoppers think," he said. "If we have a real nice garage and a mall and a beautiful downtown, it doesn't do us any good if residents won't shop here. We must have the support of residents."

Bettman said he hopes the committee will make a recommendation to the village board on the need and feasibility of a parking garage sometime in January.

Liquor license hearing tonight for Old Pool Hall

The first hearing on a liquor license application for the Old Pool Hall Inc. will be held tonight by the Arlington Heights Village Board's public health and safety committee.

Developers of the proposed restaurant and lounge, located in the old pool hall at 1 N. Vail Ave., have already received village board approval for the restaurant and a reduction in the parking fund donation.

The developers, William Harvey of Evanston, Michael Jordan of Elmhurst and Robert Pennacchio of Mount Prospect, want to turn the 82-year-old brick building into a tri-level restaurant and lounge.

According to their plans, the basement would have a bar and lounge area with the dining sections on the main and mezzanine levels.

The men are seeking a class AA license. The classification is for the service of liquor incidental to the sale of meals.

The license would permit the sale of liquor until 1 a.m. weeknights and 2 a.m. on the weekends.

The meeting, open to the public, will be at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., at 8 p.m.

Frustrated taxpayers fight in court

Parks annex march continues

by JOE SWICKARD
A news analysis

The procedure is becoming routine for the Arlington Heights Park District. But for the people it can be a startling experience of governmental efficiency.

A year ago the Illinois General Assembly passed a bill that enabled park districts to annex land that was surrounded by previousiy annexed land and a highway. The park commissioners took a look at their patchwork and sawtoothed boundaries and visions of straight borders danced before them.

The first section to be involuntarily annexed was the Lynnwood subdivision, an unincorporated area of 125 homes northwest of Arlington Heights.

THE HOMEOWNERS there howled that they had no voice in the annexation. Why were we just told and not asked, they wondered?

The Lynnwood group hired an attorney, Donald J. Kreger, and took the matter to court where it now rests.

Kreger, attorney for four park districts himself, said legal memorandums are being filed in the case and a lower court decision is expected in two months.

No matter which way the judge rules, appeals are expected in the case.

While the courts grind on slowly, the park district's annexation march continues.

DOWN RAND ROAD, the board goes, taking sections of 60 acres or less as the law prescribes.

A 30-acre triangle, bounded by Rand and Stratford roads and Oakton Street, was on the district's agenda Tuesday.

A handful of residents from the unincorporated area sat waiting to be absorbed.

Park Board Pres. Lloyd Meyer was polite but direct. He said he had heard all the arguments before and while some of the arguments had merit it was strictly welcome to park district for them.

"You'll probably walk away thinking that we had our minds made up already," Meyer said. "And you're probably right."

HE WAS CANDID with them. The district needed and wanted the tax money from the area: $46.50 per $10,000 assessed valuation per house.

"Basically we're doing this for the tax money. We're trying to get as much as we can," he said.

Charles Bobinette, park district attorney, assured the residents that just because the park district was annexing them, it did not mean the village was going to follow suit.

"They have their own ballgame to play, and we have our own, too," Bobinette said.

He said the district was taking the action because the jagged borders were an administrative nightmare, and because residents, while paying activity fees, do not contribute tax money for the upkeep of the facilities they are using.

RESIDENTS ROSE to speak. Would the parks solve the flooding problems? They weren't using the parks so why should they be forced to join?

Meyer again said some of the problems and gripes were justified. But, as he said, he had heard it all before.

"We can't single out you, you or you," he said.

The board had to think of the entire district when it came to such annexations, he told them.

Like it or not, they were now part of the district.

IT ALL HAS become very routine for the commissioners. Read the ordinance and then vote unanimously to annex another parcel.

The residents sat quietly while the board moved to other considerations. Slowly and quietly they left as discussions and deliberations continued.

They had seen their new government in action, dealing with routine matters.

Arlington closes track to shows until fee is paid

The Village of Arlington Heights will not permit any exhibitions to be held at Arlington Park until the fees due from a ski show held in November are paid.

The action has been taken because operators of a ski show held from Oct. 23-26 left before paying the 3 per cent gross receipts on admissions fee, said Building Comr. Martin Munsen who issues business licenses for the expositions.

"When it came time to settle up at the end they were gone," he said. "Normally, receipts are tallied up at the end of the show. We haven't seen the receipts so we don't know how much they owe us."

Although the matter has been sent to Village Atty. Jack Siegel, the village decided not to file a suit against the Harry A. Leonard Co. of New York which conducted the ski show in six cities across the nation.

"The track has been put on notice that no more exhibitions may be held until the fee is paid," said Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson. "This puts the pressure on the other party. It's the best leverage we've got. I think it's better than a suit. This way someone will have to come up with the money."

Determine village policy

Bonds screening unit proposed

The formation of a special commission to screen businesses seeking low-interest revenue bonds has been proposed by the Arlington Heights Village Board legal committee.

The village board will be asked to approve creation of the Industrial and Commercial Development Commission to determine village policy on issuance of industrial revenue bonds used to spur village business development.

"Someone has to do the research on businesses requesting these bonds," Trustee Madeline Schroeder said. "Audits only show the past. What you have to be concerned with is the future because of the risk. You have to be very careful with the company that is involved and their future prospects."

THE VILLAGE'S finance committee last week received a request for a $350,000 industrial bond issue from J. R. Carlson Laboratories, Chicago, a vitamin distributor. The company employes 42 persons and is interested in building a warehouse in the Arlington Industrial Research Center on the village's north end.

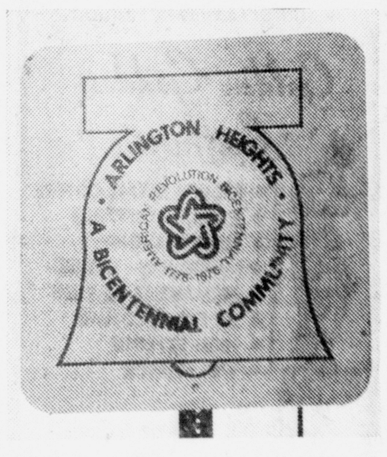
Industrial revenue bonds are issued by a municipality, but backed and paid for exclusively by the business. Because interest on the municipal bonds is tax-exempt, the rate is usually 1.5 to 2 per cent lower than private market bonds, officials said.

The maximum bond issue possible for any single business is $5 million, according to state statutes.

The ordinance creating the Industrial and Commercial Development commission also calls for the creation of a non-profit economic development corporation to raise funds and handle the commission's other financial responsibilities.

IF CREATED, the seven-member commission will be under village board control. Commission members would be appointed by Village Pres. James T. Ryan with board approval. Two commission members would have three-year terms, two, two-year terms, and three would serve for one year.

"I hope that members of the commission will not just be local real estate people," Mrs. Schroeder said. "We need the kind of people who live in Arlington Heights and possibly work outside the area that have great expertise in this (development) area. There are many excellent people who we could be using."



SIGN OF THE times. New signs are being erected on major roads leading to the village, designating it a Bicentennial community. This one is on N. Arlington Heights Road south of Dundee Road.

Police communications conference meets today

Representatives from 32 Chicago-area police departments will attend a Law Enforcement Agencies Data System conference today in Arlington Heights to discuss the computer-teletype operation.

Phil Herman, communications director for Central Dispatch Center, Arlington Heights, said it was the first regional conference about the system to be conducted outside Springfield.

Officials of the LEADS system will speak to police representatives from Cook, Lake and McHenry counties starting at 10 a.m. at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building.

Herman said discussion will center around problems concerning the operation and how the system relates to the public.

The teletype system is linked to state and national crime computers storing information about criminals. Information can be relayed to individual police departments in a few minutes concerning criminal histories, license plate background or other information.

Dist. 21 rolls projection study tonight

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 officials will present district enrollment projections through 1981 tonight that indicate the district will not face school closings like those predicted in neighboring Arlington Heights Dist. 25 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said that predictions, based on current enrollments and estimates of future construction, show the district's enrollment would drop from the current 8,350 to 7,900 if no new housing is built in the district in the next five years.

If new construction continues, however, officials predict that the enrollment may climb to 9,700 by 1981.

A detailed analysis of the projections will be given to board members tonight.

BOARD MEMBERS also are expected to discuss the use of religious holiday music or materials in district classrooms. Gill said he has received some phone calls from parents disturbed about these issues, especially during the Christmas season.

The district has policies covering both religious instruction and holiday activities and programs. Religious instruction should be limited to the "social and historical aspects surrounding religious festivities" and "should be accomplished with good taste and care, considering the wide background of the pupils."

Concerning holiday activities and programs, the policy reads: "Activities and programs may have a seasonal theme, but shall not have religious themes." The policy says traditional songs and customs which have become generally accepted, though originally religious, may be used.

The board will meet at 8:15 p.m. in the board room at district headquarters, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Parks nearing agreement on joint-use pact

A reciprocal agreement between the Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights park districts is near completion.

The Arlington Heights Park District voted Tuesday to extend use of the Olympic Park indoor swimming pool to Rolling Meadows residents in exchange for use of the ice arena.

The pact was endorsed Tuesday by the recreation committee of the Rolling Meadows Park Board. The agreement will move from committee to the full board for final action next week.

The agreement, worked out by administrators of the two districts, calls for each district to sell passes good at the other's facility.

THE ARLINGTON Heights parks would sell 12 skating tickets to its residents for $10 to be used at the ice arena.

The Rolling Meadows Park District would sell $1 admission tickets to the indoor pool at Olympic Park.

The agreement would open swimming and skating lessons to residents of the two districts in the future, although residents of the home district would be given first opportunity to enroll.

The pact, which must be renewed annually, would increase the revenues of both districts, said Thomas Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District director.

Ford wants data on near collisions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday ordered Transportation Sec. William Coleman to report to him about jet airliners which nearly collided recently.

A spokesman said Ford spoke to Coleman before a cabinet meeting "and expressed his concern" about near collisions. The spokesman said the President 'is very concerned about maintaining the U.S.' excellent safety record."

The National Transportation Safety Board said that on Thanksgiving eve over Lake Michigan, an American Airline jumbo jet carrying 194 persons from Chicago to Newark, N.J., dived 2,000 feet — passing 20 to 100 feet from a TWA jumbo carrying 114 persons from Philadelphia to Los Angeles.

Twenty-four persons were injured in the American craft.

AT CHICAGO'S O'Hare Airport last Friday, the Federal Aviation Administration said, a TWA flight landing with 70 passengers from Hartford, Conn., closed to within 300 feet of a United Air Lines flight landing from Providence, R.I., with 53 persons.

The FAA said an air traffic controller "failed to recognize" one craft was overtaking another.

The FAA, investigating near mid-air collisions, also told Monday of two other incidents Friday, involving planes intruding on each other's air space. It said it found the Air Traffic Control System at fault in one case and possible pilot error in the other.

In the system-failure case, it said a North Central passenger jet going from Janesville, Wis., to Chicago was assigned an altitude of 7,000 feet along with a twin-engine Cessna, bound for Palwaukee Airport west of Chicago. The Cessna crossed in front of the North Central plane about 16 miles southeast of Janesville.

In the other incident, a TWA jet en route to Chicago was assigned an altitude of 31,000 feet and a jet Commander, traveling the same route, was assigned at 33,000 feet. The FAA said "there was a minor communications failure" and the descending Commander crossed "through the altitude" of the other craft.

Holiday flights canceled by United flights will be scheduled if the United strike continues.

"The limiting factor, obviously, is the number of aircraft and the necessary crew time. In this situation, even if we could profitably operate more flights, we're prevented from doing so."

United Airlines has been receiving $3 million a day from other airline companies since the strike began Saturday. The money is paid to a strike-bound air line company under terms of a mutual-aid agreement and is partial compensation for windfall profits realized by the other carriers.

United officials defended the controversial mutual-aid agreement Wednesday, saying that it has been upheld by the courts and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The suspension of contract negotiations and the subsequent announcements by United mean that, as of Dec. 13, all of United's 49,000 employes will be either on strike, at reduced pay or laid off.

Walker sues education office

Gov. Daniel Walker has filed suit against the Illinois Office of Education to prevent it from paying schools more state aid per month than has been appropriated by the Illinois General Assembly.

The governor filed suit Tuesday in Sangamon County Circuit Court seeking a restraining order against the board prohibiting it from paying schools more than one-twelfth per month of the amount appropriated by the state.

The state school board two weeks ago approved paying schools in the amount originally approved by the legislature last spring. The initial appropriation, however, was cut by $81 million when Walker slashed all agency appropriations by 6 per cent. A bitter fight in the House and Senate failed to override the governor's veto and the schools wound up with $81 million less than they anticipated.

WHILE THE STATE board action will not guarantee schools more than the legislature has appropriated this year, it will give them more money initially. Schools will receive larger monthly payments but funds will run out before July 1, 1976, the end of the fiscal year.

State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin supported the higher payments, saying schools would have to borrow money soon if they did not get anticipated funds. Cronin said he would attempt to get an additional appropriation from the legislature in the spring but could make no guarantees.

The board acted on the advice of its attorney, Julia Dempsey, who said it was illegal for the board to disperse aid according to the appropriation and not the original formula.

Walker immediately labeled the board's vote "illegal" and an "act of defiance." He said he would sue to prevent the overpayments.

The way we see it

Juvenile court needed here

The Herald has long supported the concept of decentralizing Cook County services, and we believe the latest proposal to move the juvenile court to Schaumburg is another step in that direction.

The satellite Cook County Juvenile Court would be located in a $1.5 million police and courts building that is under construction in Schaumburg. The proposal is supported by officials of 10 Northwest suburban communities who have asked the Northwest Municipal Conference to study the juvenile court needs in this area. John S. Boyle, chief judge of the Circuit Court, will make the ultimate decision.

We believe such a court close to home would best serve the interests of the people of the Northwest suburbs who for too long have been forced to travel to Chicago or to other distant suburbs to conduct county business.

Schaumburg's new police-courts building is an ideal location for the juvenile court, which now is located in Niles.

Such a branch court would prove to the residents of this area that they too are a part of Cook County and entitled to the same convenience as the residents of the City of Chicago.

Along with decentralization of county service, we have supported a mini-center in this area where residents could take care of all their county business. We continue to support such a proposal. Maywood, where a mini-civic-center is located, is hardly more convenient to our residents than the Chicago civic center.

In the meantime, a juvenile court in Schaumburg would be a direct help to the police departments and the people of the Northwest suburbs.

Hey! Something should be changed here!!

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Sagittarius.

Former New York City Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was born Dec. 11, 1882.

• In 1936, Britain's King Edward VIII abdicated the throne to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson — "The woman I love." His brother, the Duke of York, succeeded to the throne as King George VI.

• In 1941, four days after Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, Germany and Italy declared war on the United States.

• In 1972, Apollo 17 astronauts Gene Cernan and Harrison Schmitt landed on the moon for a three-day exploration.

School district secrecy criticized

letters to the editor

Your editorial, "Let's Reduce School Secrecy" (Dec. 5), hit the nail right on the head. Having subscribed to The Herald for some time now, it is obvious from your reporting that the great majority of school districts in the Northwest suburbs employ an "open door" policy. But not Dist. 62.

I have taught in Dist. 62 for more than eight years now, and for the past two and one-half years have consistently attended the bi-monthly school board meetings. (On many occasions, the visitors have included only myself and your conscientious reporter.) Your reports of "secrecy" have been very obvious to me and, I'm sure, to your reporters.

Public apathy is indeed unfortunate. Maintaining a meaningful and relevant educational program is dependent not only upon the teachers but also upon parental and community interest and support. Dist. 62 is unquestionably a fine school system. I personally know of no finer. But continued board secrecy, coupled with community apathy, cannot be healthy. The Dist. 62 Board of Education must, like our neighboring districts, reverse its past policies and become more accountable and available to the community it serves.

Dear teachers, parents and citizens of Des Plaines:

Wake up and smell the coffee!

My praise goes out to The Herald for their gutsy editorial last Friday on the continued malpractice of the Dist. 62 Board of Education concerning its lack of effort in releasing public information.

However, Des Plaines Herald, you have made one grave error. The board of education does release public information. Namely, teacher salaries. Not only does it release the teachers' salaries in actual dollar amount, but also reflects the per cent increase over the last year.

In another Des Plaines publication the board's negotiations team head released actual average increases that will be realized by teachers, total dollar cost to the district for teachers' salaries and fringes, the threat of increased taxes if teachers' salaries are raised and finally went as far as to say "the proposal provides the best salary schedule for elementary teacher in the state of Illinois." This last statement has long since been disproven.

So you see, the board is responsible; but only to those items that will benefit itself. Making the teacher the scapegoat of financial plight is common practice by boards of education. What the public ends up seeing is a group of supposed malcontents who continually leech the taxpayer. This will continue. C'mon, folks, let's wake up!

Is this the board of education who supposedly reflects your views?

Is this the board of education who truly represents you as a viable, honest community?

Wake up, teachers? — Don't let this continue!

Wake up, teachers! Don't let this tration gets paid, too, and they are not in the classroom with your children everyday!

Wake up, citizens. Find out what's going on. You have a right to know!

Finally, if the board of education insists on keeping public information private, there is only one question which remains — what are they trying to hide?

It's your money, taxpayer, I only work in Des Plaines.

Think about it and wake up and smell the coffee?

We need free market, not fair-trade laws

President Ford is about to sign a bill to repeal fair-trade laws in 21 states, including Illinois. It's a step that will benefit consumers.

The term "fair trade" sounds consumer-oriented, but in recent years it has worked against them. Fair-trade laws are nothing more than a form of price fixing, designed to allow a factory to dictate prices to retailers.

Originally designed to protect small sellers, these laws now protect high price tags on such items as stereo components, television sets and other household appliances.

Free competition is a much better alternative. Fair-trade laws are a hold-over from the Depression, when such laws were desirable. Today, they impede the kind of free competition which could help reduce our present nationwide inflation.

President Ford has promised to sign the bill which eliminates all the remaining fair-trade laws. When he does, it will be a substantial victory for the hard-pressed consumers of Illinois.

He hits school strike 'weapon'

An open letter to the Board of Education, East Maine School Dist. 63.

After suffering through an unjust and illegal strike caused by the members of the East Maine Education Assn., which was compounded by some of their members employing abusive, oppressive, illegal and condemnable means to achieve their ends, I now realize the wisdom behind the prohibition against public employes from striking.

It is unnecessary for me to catalog the transgressions of the strikers. Suffice it to say that after three days on the picket line it became a matter of extreme priority to the representatives of the EMEA to include the issue of amnesty at the top of their list of demands.

Strikes are no longer peaceful demonstrations of a worker's expression of the justness of his cause. They are conspiracies designed to destroy the will of the employer, through insult, intimidation, criminal damage to property and injury to others, irrespective of right or wrong.

This is not a weapon that should be permitted to be used by any person, but in the hands of a public servant it becomes an intolerable cancer.

In the future I respectfully suggest that if you are confronted with a similar situation, you proceed with all deliberate speed to secure an injunction, and then follow it up with all other remedies at your disposal, including but not limited to the firing of all those who thereafter refuse to obey the order of court.

If your board ever again capitulates to the demands of the EMEA because of the existence or threat of a strike, it will, in my opinion, have decapitated your administrative arm, without which you are impotent. Don't delude yourselves, the issues here were not starting salaries, work schedules or conditions, etc. What we all experienced was a pure and simple power struggle.

Because of this unhappy experience, I have become familiar with the collective bargaining bills which have been sponsored and/or endorsed by Representative Jaffe and others. It is my opinion that once passed, the power of the people and boards of education elected by them throughout the state of Illinois will have been reduced to the level that the approval of the height of a water fountain will constitute a major decision.

Let me say to all of you that I accept equal responsibility for the events of the past month and the causes which produced them. I was apathetic and slept on my rights. I came in too late with too little.

There is an old saying, "You fool me once, shame on you, but if you fool me twice, shame on me." I hope we all learned from this so that in the future we will be in a position to either prevent it from occurring, or once having commenced we will possess the power to destroy it.

'People aid recycling'

Dear Ms. Tonkin:

I very much enjoyed reading your article on recycling in the Nov. 19 edition of The Herald. However, I would like to comment on the following statement by the Institute of Scrap Iron And Steel, Inc.:

"The experiences of the collection centers, which generally have declined in numbers and popularity for lack of viable markets, led many people to the conclusion that volunteer efforts, as well-meaning as they may be, have little impact on reducing the amount of solid waste in the cycle or in assembling materials for potential recycling."

Of the more than 3 million tons of newspapers being recycled annually in the United States, the vast majority of this paper is collected through the efforts of individuals acting by themselves, within groups and from environmentally motivated collection centers.

Without these individual efforts, most of these secondary fibers would have ended up as solid waste and as such would have contributed to the rising disposal costs that municipalities incur.

As an example, the 324 tons of paper recycled by the Palatine recycling has resulted in the elimination of the need to dispose of this material (often running in excess of $30 per ton), extending the life span of approximately 5,508 trees (one tree equals about one ton of paper), and providing a valuable raw material (over 15 tons of wastepaper was recycled in 1974.)

I hope that you will contine to report on the status of recycling throughout your area, as the future is bright.

Thornton Wilder

If Thornton Wilder had written nothing more than "Our Town," his place in the hearts of most Americans would be secure.

Wilder, who died Sunday at the age of 78, had a lifetime of literature to his credit, much more than merely his deceptively simple play about a mythical New England hamlet called Grover's Corners.

He won three Pulitzer Prizes, two for his plays, "Our Town" and "The Skin of our Teeth," and one for a novel, "Bridge of San Luis Rey," written in 1927. His play, "The Matchmaker," became the basis of "Hello, Dolly!", one of this nation's most popular musical comedies.

"Our Town," which is performed on an almost-bare stage, creates a deeply-felt feeling of nostalgia for an earlier, simpler era in American life.

The play, however, is not simple nostalgia. As we watch George Gibbs and Emily Webb grow up, marry and die, we are reminded of the beauty and sadness of our own mortality. If the play teaches us anything, it is that we must learn to enjoy the life which passes so quickly around us.

We mark with sadness the death of Thornton Wilder. But his words endure, to be understood and enjoyed by generations of Americans yet to be born.

Hammer of death

I noticed while watching Channel 7 on TV last evening that two persons were attacked and killed in Chicago and that the attacker used a hammer as the murder weapon.

Possibly since the crime was committed on a Tuesday, the attacker couldn't purchase the usual "Saturday Night Special" and had to resort to a plain old hammer.

Which one of you gun control crusaders will now pick up the torch and start a campaign for some "hammer control legislation"? Have pity on the poor Mr. Fix-it, carpenters and do-it-yourself homeowners, for they may be required to register their hammers as a lethal weapon, and present their registration card when purchasing tacks or nails at the local hardware store.

Please note, CBS-TV, think what a special this would be — "The Hammers of Autumn."

As one of thousands of registered gun owners and sportsmen who have been advocating this policy for years, take away the gun and a prospective criminal will find another weapon, means or source of committing a crime.

Gun control is not the TOTAL answer.

School secrecy—the public's constant bane

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

An editorial in The Herald last week criticizing Des Plaines Dist. 62 officials for their secrecy in governing the elementary school district evoked an unusually high amount of reaction from people in Des Plaines and other suburbs.

The district was chastized for refusing to release administrators' salaries — an unheard of practice in all other area districts — and for making it difficult for the public to have access to other information, such as budgets.

Although there appears to be a definite problem in Dist. 62, various "secrecy levels" are maintained in other districts from time to time. It becomes apparent when a "sensitive" issue comes up and officials would rather forget it than make it public.

I HAVE periodically been approached by superintendents, board members, teachers and principals who are looking for a little "good press" after we've written about a negative aspect of the district. They've also come to ask for understanding or with an outright request that a story not be written.

In the midst of a particularly bad situation I had a superintendent ask if we could hold off writing anything until everything was resolved. That would be like waking up one day to read the war in Vietnam was over without ever having seen a story saying it was happening.

The argument is generally the same: People won't understand and you'll only get them upset. Or: This is an internal matter and people won't understand. Or: People aren't educators and won't understand.

It would lead you to believe that people are generally stupid, but what it boils down to is that a lot of officials would rather do it themselves without public interference or criticism.

IT IS INTERESTING to compare the way school districts operate — particularly the way boards of education conduct district business.

High School Districts 207, 214 and 211 and several elementary school districts freely pass out "board packets" to people who attend their meetings. These packets are filled with information on each item that will be discussed by the board, giving background, rationales and recommendations. Everything is clearcut, and on an evening with a busy agenda you practically need a wheelbarrow to cart the packet home.

In other districts you are handed a single sheet agenda that gives a Roberts Rules of Order listing of what comes when. The board proceeds to vote on "agenda item 12-6-75" and the audience has no idea whether they've just witnessed the approval of a major boundary shift of the purchase of salt for the cafeteria.

Some districts will pass out a budget to anyone who will take one while others tuck them away hoping no one will ask to see it. Some districts openly discuss weak programs or problem test scores and what to do about them while others would sooner shut down the district than let the people know the reading curriculum is not up to par.

People who live in the silent districts generally complain and gnash their teeth and don't attend meetings "because you don't find out anything anyway," and the situation remains status quo.

But when you think that about 75 per cent of your property tax bill and a good percentage of state taxes goes to support your schools, and that your child only has one shot at being educated, it is clear just how important it is to know what's happening.

Favors driver testing facility

On the Nov. 28 editorial, I have to agree. We need an area driver testing center nearby. Did you know we would be helping at least 16 driver-ed programs in area schools? Most moms have to take a full day now to drive these teen-agers to the nearest testing center in Libertyville at Elston Ave. or Elgin.

If you check back into your Fence Post files, you will find, I agreed with another editorial on the very same matter on Sept. 22, 1971. (The letter appeared on Thursday, Sept. 30). At that time I had just gone to a crowded Elgin station for my written examination after nine years of driving My hope still is this, 'that we get our driver testing center soon, before my return trip in October of 1980." At the rate we are moving, it may just take that long.

Next year my second daughter will take driver's ed at Forest View. She will be ready to take her examination by the fall of next year. Is it too much for one mother to hope for a testing station as soon as that?

Explains petition gathering move

It was reported last week that I am collecting the signatures of those Des Plaines residents who are in opposition to the possible acquisition or condemnation of the Neve property on Hawthorn Lane for a park. I want to briefly explain why I am doing so.

The petition I have drawn has nothing to do with the secret park district plans to acquire the property. Des Plaines residents who sign that petition simply resent the park district's possible plan to acguire or condemn that particular five acres of the Neve property for a park. It does not oppose parks, but it does oppose one on the Neve property.

Despite the business-oriented nature of the law, when the public discovered the park district was planning to acquire the Neve property, it must expect the public to act as vehemently as it did. I am realizing this by the reaction I receive from petition signers. The law dictates secrecy and surprise, but in this case (and in many recent others) it cannot comprehend fairness or justice.

Garbage pickup pact criticized

I resent the tyrannical contract Laseke has with the village.

It seems to me the contract benefits Laseke and again the public gets the short end of the stick.

The contract should not give Laseke the exclusive right to collect all refuse in the village. The contract also says it is illegal not to have garbage service.

At the time negotiations were going on for a new contract, some residents favored bringing garbage cans to curb side to be picked up in order to keep the lower rate but Mr. Palmatier did not favor this arrangement.

I wonder who would represent me if I had a legitimate grievance with Laseke and could not be fairly resolved as in the recent Marcy case. Would the village board come to my defense?

I agree with Mr. Marcy it is blackmail. The per cent of increase Laseke is asking is outrageous, considering the service they give.

'Computer banks' ruled illegal

Computer banking machines offered by two Chicago banks as a consumer convenience are in violation of Illinois law, U. S. District Court Judge Hubert L. Will ruled Wednesday.

Will issued a verbal opinion on suits filed by the Illinois Attorney General against Continental Bank and the First National Bank of Chicago. The suits charged that 24-hour computerized terminals operated outside bank offices violate the state law prohibiting branch banking.

A SPOKESMAN FOR Continental Bank, Chicago, said no opinion will be issued on the ruling until a written opinion is obtained.

"We will seek an expeditious appeal of the decision," the spokesman said.

The two banks can continue operation of the terminals pending an appeal of the decision, the judge said. Continental Bank has facilities at the Chicago and North Western station and 2 Illinois Center in Chicago. First National Bank has machines at the Time-Life Building and Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, both in Chicago.

The banking machines allow customers to cash checks make deposits and receive small loans. Machines which permit only withdrawal from checking and savings accounts do not violate state law, Will said. His ruling is based on the McFadden Act. The federal law requires national banks to conform to state law. One financial institution spokesman said the decision probably will not affect electronic banking terminals opened in Chicago area food stores.

Retail sales prospects trigger late stocks rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — A brighter retail sales picture triggered a late rally that carried prices to their best gain Wednesday in nearly a month on the New York Stock Exchange.

Trading was moderate.

The Commerce Dept. ignited the late rally by reporting a 1 per cent climb in November retail sales following a revised 1.3 per cent jump in October. U.S. Steel's announcement its January orders are up substantially, following a disastrous fourth quarter, also helped.

Analysts said these reports constituted the best economic news in weeks. There had been gloom on Wall Street following two consecutive monthly declines in the government's index of leading economic indicators.

AS A RESULT of the news, the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 9.84 points to 833.99, the best showing since it climbed 13.70 points to 852.25 on Nov. 13. It had fluctuated much of the session. The average has gained 15.19 points the past three sessions after plunging 41.87 points last week.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.78 to 88.08, and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by 27 cents.

Advances topped declines, 897 to 483, among the 1,843 issues crossing the tape with 463 unchanged.

Volume totaled 15,680,000 shares, down from the 16,040,000 traded Tuesday.

Retail issues were pacesetters much of the day following the release of the government's retail sales data and reports that sales have gotten off to a good start this Christmas season, compared with last year.

SEARS, ROEBUCK gained 1 to 67-7/8, J.C. Penney 1-1/8 to 46-5/8, Petrie Stores ex-dividend 1½ to 70¼, May Department Stores 7/8 to 46-3/8 and Marcor 3/4 to 28-7/8.

Avon Products, a 1-1/8-point loser Tuesday, was the third most active Big Board issue, falling another 7/8 to 34¾ on 270,400 shares. The issue, a big loser lately, fell 5-1/8 points Friday after the company announced a merger agreement with Monarch Capital.

Greyhound led the Big Board actives, falling ¼ to 12¼ on 386,700 shares, including a block of 300,000 shares at 12. Gulf Oil was third, unchanged at 19-7/8 on 274,000 shares.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by four cents. Volume totaled 1,660,000 shares, compared with 1,750,000 traded Tuesday.

Expect fuel prices to stand pat

Gasoline and fuel oil prices will do no worse than stand pat through the winter, one authority said Wednesday in Chicago, even though he said he felt the Ford Administration was "playing games" with the nation's energy problem.

Senior Editor Herb Hugo of the daily Platt's Oilgram, an industry publication, said he believes President Ford will veto the omnibus energy bill, rescind the $2 import tariff and extend the current price controls another year in an effort to resolve a sticky political situation.

"It seems to us that's the route Ford will go," Hugo said. "It still is playing games — coming to grips with the political crisis not the energy crisis.

"But that's still better than a complete surrender to Congress, where there is good support for the energy bill. At least that's the way the oil industry feels about it," Hugo said.

Hugo said if Ford pursues the three courses predicted in today's issue, "gasoline prices might soften — possibly as much as three cents per gallon," Hugo said. He based his projection on the fact that prices were increased about that much following the Ford-imposed tariffs earlier this year.

Hugo also expects fuel oil prices to remain constant through the winter unless it turns out to be exceptionally severe.

"The oil industry overextended itself last summer if only to prove that it could take care of the American public's demand," Hugo said. "Refineries stepped up production, then demand fell off and along came the mild fall. That left an abundance of gasoline and of fuel oil."

Hugo said he expected the tariff to be removed about the first of the year.

JOE STREZISHAR, 22, began his second week of flagpole sitting in Morton Grove Tuesday. He hopes to raise $50-a-day in pledges and contributions to fight muscular dystrophy. A spokesman said he is slightly ahead of the goal so far. Strezishar plans to stay on his 25-foot perch until New Year's Day, and then will make a decision about how much longer to remain.

Farmers should organize: AFL-CIO chief

AFL-CIO Illinois President Stanley Johnson Wednesday told members of the Illinois Farm Bureau the "long road of exemptions" they have enjoyed from labor legislation is ending.

"The beginning has been long in coming, but you can no longer ignore it," Johnson said. "You can't crawl into your respective farms and forget the rest of society."

Johnson, whose organization includes one million workers in Illinois, also said he thinks farmers would do better financially if they were better organized themselves.

"If you're going to get anywhere, you have to organize, because we're an organized society," he said. "I'd like to see farmers organize, not to hold up the public, but to get their fair share."

Johnson noted that farmers, under a new law, must contribute to workmen's compensation if they employ persons outside their family for 245 hours or more a year. He predicted they will have to pay unemployment compensation in the future.

"These things are going to be put on you if you have hired help," he said.

Jack Block, an IFB leader from Knox County, told Johnson many farmers are afraid their operations will become less efficient if they are forced to operate under labor regulations.

Johnson said labor has not made American industry inefficient.

Upgrade park meterlocks

Part of the $5.2 million in revenue the City Council expects to be generated by increasing parking meter costs will have to be used to purchase magnetic locks to thwart looters, a city official said Wednesday.

Budget Director Edward Bedore told the city's Finance Committee upgrading parking meters near Chicago's Loop from 10 cents to 25 cents for 30 minutes "gives you a reason to break in" and necessitated the new locks.

The committee passed an ordinance which will increase all nickel-an-hour meters to 10 cents and will make all meters on the fringe of the Loop 25 cents for 30 minutes. Meters inside the Loop will remain 25 cents for 15 minutes.

George Kloak, deputy commissioner of the Department of Streets and Sanitation, said there are 34,000 parking meters in Chicago and 98 per cent presently charge 5 cents an hour.

3 die in Maywood fire

Three small children were killed Wednesday in a fire at their home in suburban Maywood.

The victims were identified as Antonio Hall, 5; and 15-month-old twins Shawn and Sharmain Hall. Two older youths, Danny Hall, 15, and Diane, 20, were taken to West Lake Community Hospital in Melrose Park and treated for shock.

Authorities said the fire apparently started because of a malfunction in the heating system.

Their grandmother, Mrs. Ada Hall, with whom the children had been staying, was away for a short time when the fire started. She also was treated for shock. Authorities said the children's mother is deceased.

High school closed

St. Anne Community High School was closed to its 740 students Wednesday because of state health and safety violations and voter refusal to do anything about them.

Racial disturbances at the school and the racial mix at the St. Anne school district in Kankakee County were cited as reasons voters rejected by a 4-1 margin last Saturday a referendum to build a new school building.

The Illinois Office of Education Monday ordered the high school closed because of "serious noncompliance" with provisions of the Illinois Health and Safety Code, an action which education office assistant superintendent Richard Small said was unprecedented.

The order said the high school must remain closed until the health and safety violations have been corrected. Besides conditions in the school building, Small said, there was a serious overcrowding problem which resulted in double shifts.

Money can't replace baby: father

LONDON (UPI) — Christina Bhela went to look in on her 5-month-old daughter and found the baby barely breathing. She snatched the child from the crib and called an ambulance.

The vehicle braked to a stop in front of the Bhela home at 7:03 p.m. Tuesday night, picked up the baby and then took off toward Hillingdon Hospital a mile away. A worried Mrs. Bhela followed in a police car.

On the way, the ambulance's radio controller said Hillingdon would not take the baby. A doctors' strike had ruled out emergency cases.

SIREN SCREAMING, the ambulance changed course for Mount Vernon Hospital, another five miles away. But again the controller said no go. Mount Vernon also refused to treat the child.

The vehicle then headed for Wexham Park Hospital, 11 miles from the Bhela home. The ambulance arrived at 7:20 p.m. Doctors pronounced Seema Bhela dead. Respiratory failure.

Interns are striking across the country for more overtime pay in a serious threat to Britain's 27-year-old system of socialized medicine. Nineteen hospitals are refusing emergency cases as a result.

Authorities ordered an investigation into the death of the Bhela baby, especially to determine whether the child might have been saved.

A LONDON ambulance spokesman said the service had checked both Hillingdon and Mount Vernon as the baby was on the way. Both hospitals, he said, insisted they could not help.

A doctors' strike leader refused comment.

"I do not want to comment without knowing the full details," Dr. Paul Copeland said. "We do not know whether or not the baby would have died anyway."

There are two other Bhela children.

"Doctors are like God," said the baby's father. "They are supposed to save lives. I would like to shoot them for what they have done. They shouldn't take their disputes out on human lives.

"Money can be replaced. My little baby cannot."

Santa's mail arrives at Helsinki address

HELSINKI (UPI) — The world's children are writing to Santa Claus in record numbers this year, and 19 of his helpers are working overtime to make sure each letter is answered.

Although the children know they must be good to receive presents from Santa, the letter from Augi Cassidy of St. Joseph, Mo., summed up the situation. "I know I have been pretty bad at times, but I wish I could have a few things," she wrote.

Michael Sutton of East Morsey, England, tdded an enticement for Santa's visit. "I will leave you a glass of gin and some chocolate," he wrote.

THE LETTERS were among thousands received from around the world. Many post offices that receive mail addressed to Santa Claus at the North Pole, Reindeer Land or other exotic places send the letters to Finland.

The Helsinki Post Office gives them to the Finnish Tourist Board, which has produced a letter with Santa's own handwriting, pictures of him and a puzzle on the reverse side.

Santa's letter concludes, "Together with all my Christmas elves, I wish you and your friends and family a really good and merry Christmas. Santa also hopes that the gay and friendly spirit of Christmas will continue long after Christmas as well — right up to the following Christmas."

The tourist board estimates it will answer at least 30,000 letters this year, with about half coming from Finland. About 1,500 letters arrive daily and 10,000 have already been answered.

Last year the board replied to 10,000 foreign letters.

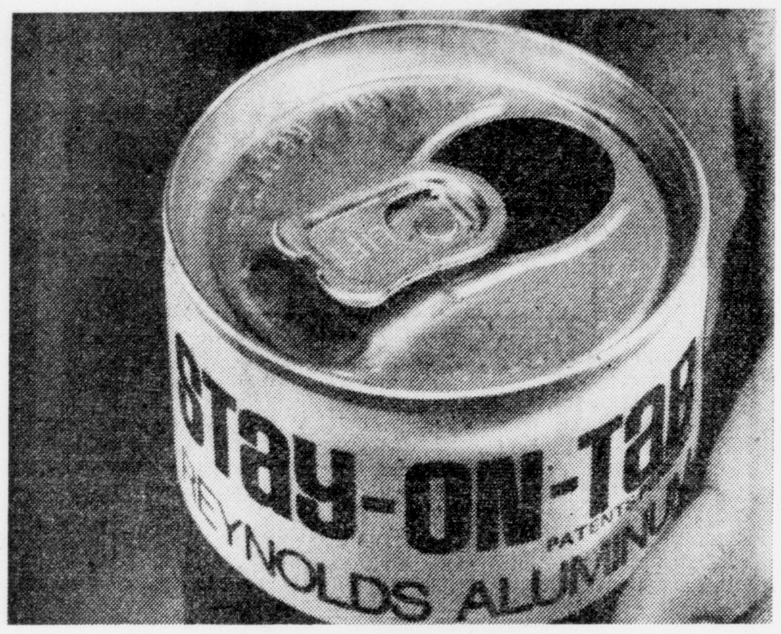
'Bottle' bill may end litter woes



A NEW "STAY-ON tab developed by Reynolds Metals Co. is a possible solution to the increasing tab-top litter problem.

LEA TONKIN

Cheaper drinks and a cleaner environment will be gained by Illinois citizens when returnable bottles and cans replace throwaways, said State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park. As chairman of the House Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Committee, Pierce plans additional Springfield committee hearings on a state "bottle" bill in January.

Although public interest in the bottle bill was shown at August committee hearings in Chicago, added citizen comment is needed to assure passage, Pierce said. In addition to participation in the January hearings, area residents can write to state legislators or contact the committee in Springfield.

Pierce's bill, H.R. 1838, would prohibit the use of nonreturnable beverage containers including bottles and cans. A 5-cent deposit on the containers would encourage returns. "It's aimed at ending solid waste and litter problems," Pierce said.

He said recycling containers would also conserve energy. A phase-in period of two to three years will allow retailers and manufacturers to adjust to the change, Pierce said.

AMONG THE LOCAL organizations which support the bottle bill are the Des Plaines Valley Chapter of the Sierra Club and the Prairie Woods Audubon Society in Arlington Heights, a chapter of the National Audubon Society.

A study by Sangamon State University students indicates beverages sold in refillable bottles are cheaper than products sold in throwaway containers, the Audubon group says. Illinois would gain about 6,000 jobs if the legislation is passed and litter problems would be reduced, the study shows. Labor organizations and glass bottle manufacturers oppose the bill, however.

Rep. Pierce plans to introduce a related bill prohibiting the use of flip top cans unless the problem of discarded metal tabs is resolved. One industry solution is the "Stay on tab" developed by Reynolds Metals Co.

The new opening device for beverage cans is being test marketed by Reynolds. The consumer opens the can by lifting a tab and pulling it forward, opening a pouring hole. The tab is then pressed down to its original can position. "Reynolds has maintained its leadership position as the developer of most of the innovations in two--piece beverage cans, and now this new end is our answer to the tab top litter problem," said Robert O'Donnell, vice president and general manager of Reynolds' Can Division.

Appeal filed to test law on doctor's insurance

The Illinois Insurance Dept. has filed a formal appeal with the Illinois Supreme Court assuring a test of the state's new malpractice insurance law.

Oral arguments on the appeal are scheduled for Jan. 23 at the University of Chicago.

The case is the first major test of a malpractice insurance law since dozens of state legislatures passed reforms earlier this year to ease a nationwide malpractice insurance crisis.

Some experts predict Illinois will become a nationally-recognized case on the constitutionality of malpractice legislation.

Two weeks ago, Circuit Court Judge David Canel ruled unconstitutional three sections of the law, which limited judgments in malpractice suits to $500,000 required hearings by the insurance department on insurance rate hikes since last June 10 and established a three-member panel to screen malpractice suits.

At the time of Canel's ruling, more than 1,400 malpractice lawsuits were pending in Cook County.

Sections of the law not under challenge lower the statute of limitations on liability previously afforded physicians.

Slave grandson borrows funds, buys plantation

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The grandson of a former slave has purchased his own plantation in southwest Mississippi and plans to move into its antebellum mansion in January.

After overcoming problems in borrowing sufficient money, Clifton T. Smith, 35, bought Canamount Plantation in Claiborne County. He plans to raise cattle on its 1,079 acres.

The Canamount land borders property owned by Smith's father. Smith's family has lived in the area since slavery times, although no one in his family actually worked at Canamount.

"I used to hunt on the property when I was a kid," Smith said, but he said he had no dreams then of living in the "big house."

A MISSISSIPPI Historical Society booklet says Canamount Mansion is the "finest example of Italianate revival efforts in Claiborne county."

Smith said he encountered problems in purchasing the land because the Farmer's Home Administration would not give him a loan. But with the help of the Emergency Land Fund, a private organization funded by the 21st Century Foundation, and the Delta Foundation, Smith was able to make the purchase.

An FHA official said the loan was turned down by the administration in Claiborne County, in Jackson, and in Washington because it was felt Smith could not make the land pay off or pay his debts.

Smith said his property was appraised at $250 an acre. The purchase price was not disclosed.

SMITH HOLDS A bachelor's degree in physical education from Alcorn State University which is adjacent to his new land.

He now lives in Cleveland, Miss., and is in charge of buildings and grounds at Delta Health Center. He also raises a few cattle on his family's property near Canamount and plans to expand his operation with the Canamount land.

He hopes eventually to give up his job at the Delta Health Center, which he has held for about 10 years, and concentrate on cattle farming. "I just want to expand and make a living out of it," he said.

Smith said his four children are looking forward to moving into the country. "They like the open area instead of the city life," he said.

As for the king-sized house — "It will take time to furnish it," Smith said.

Industry's move to suburbs on upswing

by Kurt Baer
and Lea Tonkin

The migration of industry from Chicago to the suburbs today is as fast or faster than it was five years ago, Coldwell Banker, the nation's largest real estate firm, reports.

Chicago lost 86 firms during 1974 and another 56 during the first seven months of 1975, a Coldwell Banker survey shows. The city is projected to lose 510 companies and gain only 318 firms during the 1970-75 period, for a net loss to the city of 192 companies.

Industrial firms leaving the city seem to prefer locations near O'Hare or Midway airports with Elk Grove Village and the Bedford Park-Bridgeview areas being the most popular, said Donald L. Shoemaker, vice president and manager of the Coldwell firm's Chicago office.

THE O'HARE AREA now has more industrial space than Houston, Dallas, Denver or Minneapolis, the survey shows.

The availability of modern facilities, good transportation, security, fire and police services, and an environment where employes can work and live comfortably are the major reasons behind the continued move to the suburbs, Shoemaker said.

"The trend we pick up in industry pretty much follows the housing market," he said.

Construction of new industrial buildings has slowed in the past 1½ years. There are currently 424 buildings with 25.7 million square feet of space available in the metropolitan area — enough to satisfy the demand of Chicago industry for the next 1.6 years, Coldwell Banker reports.

"This means that approximately 6 per cent of the total industrial base in the Chicago area is currently on the market. That figure is about the national average and necessary for the projected increase in industrial activity," Shoemaker said.

IN THE NORTHWEST area the vacancy figure is about 5.4 per cent, "Not an unhealthy factor," he said.

A total of 6,513 companies in the five-county metropolitan area were surveyed by Coldwell Banker.

The survey found that more than 80 per cent of Chicago area industry is in Cook County and half of this in Chicago. About 10 per cent of the industrial base is in DuPage County, and less than 10 per cent is in Kane, Lake and Will counties.

Top three manufacturing activities in Chicago are fabricated metals, nonelectrical machinery and electrical machinery, the survey reports.

Shoemaker said an upturn in new industrial building construction may lag several months or longer behind the leasing of available space.

"THE DEMAND for industrial square footage in the Chicago area has grown in recent years. Space requirements were 12.9 million square feet in 1971, 15.5 million square feet last year, and will likely reach a new high of 18.9 million square feet in 1975," he said.

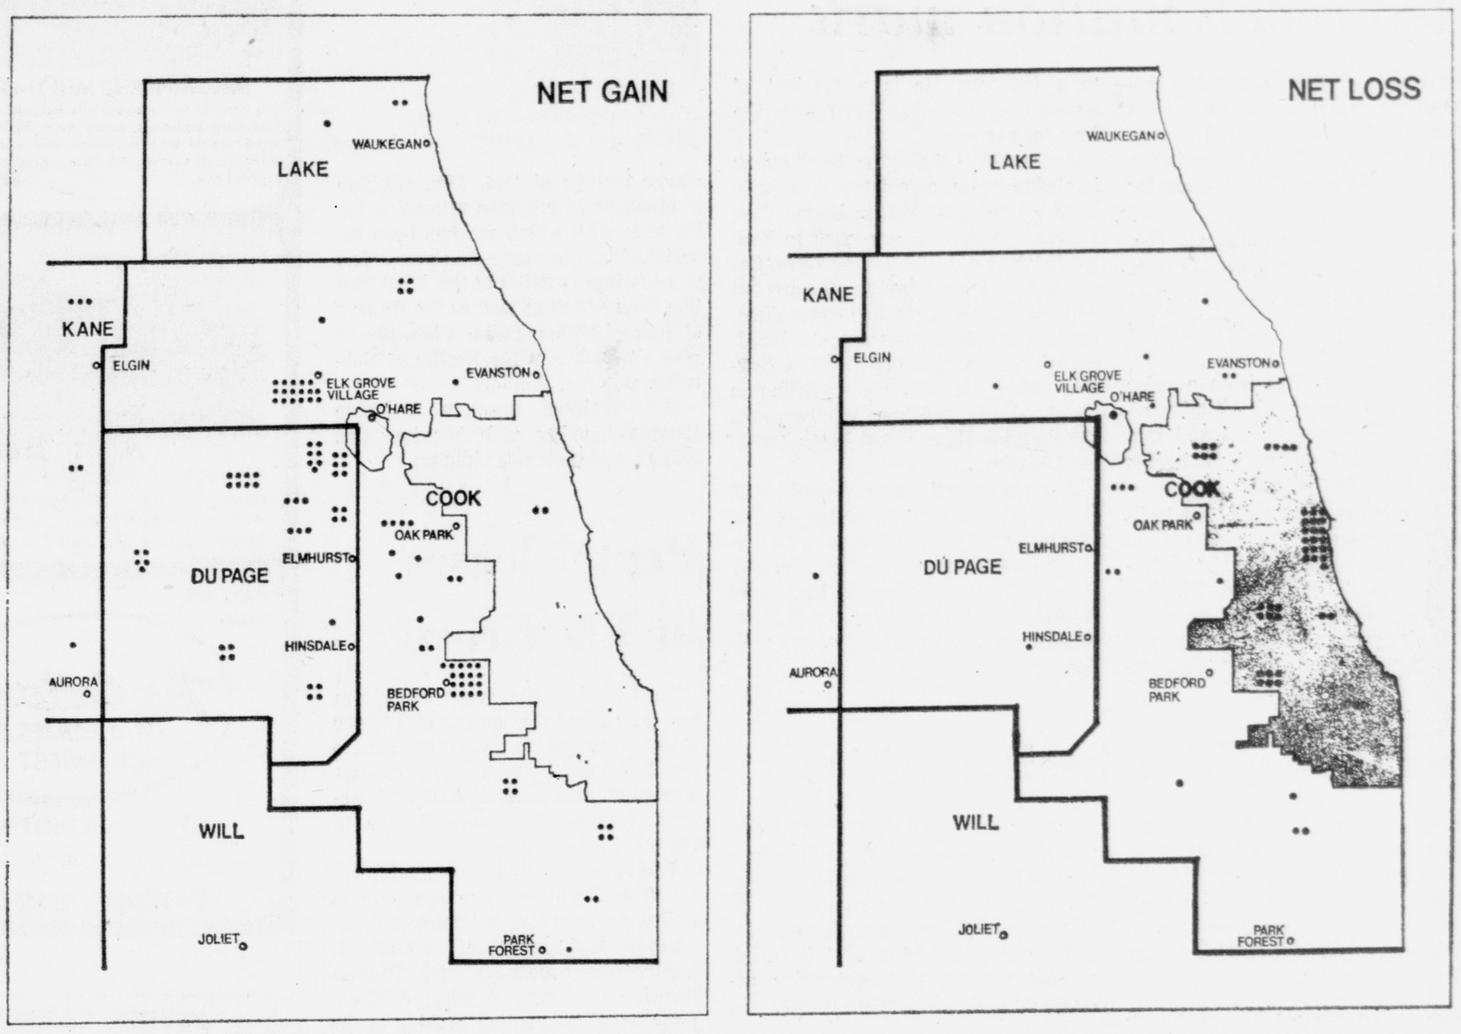
Large industrial facilities are more numerous in the Chicago area than in many other metropolitan areas, the Coldwell Banker survey shows. The average industrial firm in metropolitan Chicago is 20 per cent larger than its counterpart throughout the country.

"To emphasize the magnitude of Chicago industry, we found that there are 29 industrial facilities that contain over 1 million square feet of floor space each. These 29 buildings contain more floor space than all the industry located in San Diego, Calif.," Shoemaker said.

The relocation of industry from Chicago to the suburbs is likely to continue, Shoemaker said.

"Some companies already are finding it difficult to find the right type of space in the area in which they want to operate. It takes time to build and with industrial construction down, we anticipate that 1976 will be a much more active year in industrial real estate in the Chicago area," he said.

1974 MIGRATION OF CHICAGOLAND INDUSTRIAL FIRMS



Source: Coldwell Banker Industrial Data Bank

THE NET LOSS of industry from Chicago to the suburbs is shown for 1974. Industrial firms that leave the city prefer locations near O'Hare and Midway airports, including Elk Grove Village, a recent survey by Coldwell Banker, industrial brokers, shows.

New housing recovery weak

Glimmer in cloud--market strong for existing homes

by United Press International

Headlines on the housing industry range from lukewarm to bleak.

The Commerce Dept. reported a 15 per cent increase in October housing starts, but industry specialists doubted the rise signaled the long-awaited housing recovery.

Advance Mortgage Corp.'s third quarter survey of housing activity concluded, "This year's housing recovery has been disappointingly weak — and now it's losing whatever steam it had."

A HOUSE AND HOME forecast for 1976 sees a "measured recovery," the most difficult of the postwar era, marked by a tightening money market squeeze, with mortgage rates hovering a little below — if not at — historic highs, new housing disconcertingly expensive and the consumer still trying to get over the worst scare he's had since the 1930s.

There is a glimmer of silver in the housing cloud: Some evidence of a pick-up in single-family home activity.

The market for existing homes remains strong — at a record level, according to Advance Mortgage, Detroit subsidiary of Citicorp, New York.

"The real estate picture may not be as bleak as housing statistics imply, at least in some sections of the country," says Ticor Relocation Management Co.

Ticor, polling its regional offices and real estate brokers throughout the United States, found, "Homes and mortgage money are available and buyers are back in force.

"ALTHOUGH ACTIVITY varies considerably by region," Ticor reported, "the general tenor is cautiously optimistic for a strengthening recovery.

"With few exceptions, sales in most real estate markets are up considerably, although not to the level of the boom years of 1972 and 1973."

Ticor said housing prices generally are up more for new homes than for resales, reflecting increased production costs. It found that in 1975 appreciation for resale dwellings slowed to almost half the rate of 1972-73; and values in some areas actually have declined.

Many buyers, it reported, are opting for new homes anyway, in part because of the five per cent tax credit.

A major factor in the resurgence of real estate activity, Ticor said, is the availability of mortgage money. "Except for Minneapolis, which currently has no active market for loans, and Metropolitan New York, Buffalo Atlanta and Philadelphia, where funds are limited and selective lending is prevalent, all major areas have an ample supply of funds," Ticor said. Although the rates for these mortgage funds have begun to inch up again, they are generally lower than a year ago, the company noted.

THERE IS NO LACK of consumer interest in housing. Along with the normal factors influencing home buying, demand is generated currently by consumers seeking protection from inflation. Many of these are willing to spend at a rate far above the ordinary rules of thumb in order to secure a house.

However, George Sternlieb, director of the Center for Urban Policy Research at Rutgers University, writing in House and Home, points out the resources of the potential buyer — or renter, for that matter — do not match the new realities of costs. Along with the increased costs of buying and maintaining a home, the other costs of everyday living have soared. There has been a decline in real housing buying power among Americans.

Ticor reported the greatest housing demand is for low-priced $20,000 to $35,000 and moderate $35,000 to $55,000 housing in suburban and urban areas. "Large, expensive homes and those far from city centers are, for the most part, difficult to sell," it found.

Builders, a House and Home survey found, recognize these realities. Most still favor the single family detached house because they follow the market and, given a choice, that is what the home buyer still wants. Many, however, are looking for ways to cut costs.

As Frank Mackle, president of Miami's big Deltona Corp., put it, "We're back to our original drawing board, back to the basic house that people could afford right after the war and the only house that most people can afford today."

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates has announced the leasing of a 20,000 square foot unit in the 377,000 square foot building located at the northeast corner of Lively Boulevard and Arthur Avenue, Elk Grove Village to Pentel of America, Ltd.

Pentel, a distributor of writing instruments, will use the space as a midwest warehouse and sales center.

Lewis M. Savage of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates and Thomas Horwich of Arthur Rubloff & Company were cooperating brokers in the $230,000 lease transaction. Attorneys were Sharon Glazer of Jenner and Block representing the lessor and Jirro Yamaguchi representing the lessee.

Acco to build Wheeling office

Corporate executives of Acco International Inc. and representatives of the Village of Wheeling recently participated in formal groundbreaking ceremonies for the firm's new corporate headquarters and manufacturing facility, in Wheeling.

Acco is the world's largest manufacturer of paper fastening devices including binders, staplers, paper clips, punches and data processing supplies.

William Hein, village trustee, and Police Chief Marvin Horcher extended Wheeling's welcome to Acco and its employes.

Current plans call for initial production in the new plant by August, 1976. The new facility is located on a 12.5 acre site and will include a 191,000 sq. ft. two-story office complex and plant.

Exterior treatment will feature a succession of vertical gray pre-cast concrete panels alternating with bronze-tone windows in a striking, contemporary design.

The 2-story 30,000 square feet office complex, when completed, will face a completely landscaped garden and reflecting pool. The design also incorporates the latest techniques in interior office "landscaping," featuring a wide variety of free-standing accoustical panels in modern colors.

The facility will also house Acco's in-house computer and data processing department and a full range of international communications equipment.

Cirone was named the Salesman of the Year by the firm in 1974 for sales in excess of two million dollars.

Tin Cup Restaurant recreates history

Cal's Inc., a multi-faceted food operation headquartered in West Dundee, has announced the development of its most recent division: Tin Cup Pass Restaurant and Shopping Center.

Other divisions already established include Cal's Corn Fed Beef Restaurants; Chicken City U.S.A.'s; pizza restaurants in Costa Rica; Cal's Catering Service; and B & G Development Co., Cal's real estate development agency.

The new Tin Cup Pass Restaurant and Shopping Center is presently under construction in St. Charles and will be completed by the early part of 1976. The development receives its name from the famous town of Tin Cup, Colorado, the capital of the gold and mining country in the late 1800's. The town prospered from its mining wealth until the early 1900's, during which time the mine closed and left Tin Cup to remain a ghost town.

The wild, unique history of Tin Cup will be re-created through the architecture and decor of the shopping center's six stores and restaurant. The exterior of the complex reveals an Old-Western-type town with rustic wooden boardwalks. The theme will also be carried out in the interior of the stores, which include an old-fashioned grocery store, dress shop and land office.

The new Tin Cup Pass Restaurant will have five-level seating arrangement for 250 people. Many guests will be seated in booths inside jail cells. Each cell has a significant story to tell about the days of Tin Cup, which will be posted on the bars. Other features designed to re-create the atmosphere of the mining town include genuine gas lanterns, old-fashioned porcelain tableware and a souvenir tin cup. In the center of the restaurant's lobby will stand a 1902 Holtzman car, an antique in perfect running condition.

Walgreen issues 1975 annual report

A 30.1 per cent improvement in earnings and a sales increase of 8.3 per cent highlight the results of Walgreen Co.'s fiscal 1975, ended August 31.

Sales for the fiscal year rose to $1,079,143,636, compared to $996,616,262 in fiscal 1974.

LIFO-adjusted earnings for the year rose to $9,848,507, compared to $7,569,285 in fiscal 1974. LIFO-adjusted earnings per share were $1.49, versus $1.15 last year. On a fully diluted basis, fiscal 1975 earnings were $1.40 per share, versus $1.11 last year.

Earnings before the LIFO adjustment, noted Walgreen, recorded a more modest advance. However, he said, profits in both 1975 and 1974 would have exceeded all past records, were it not for the firm's decision to adopt the LIFO accounting method.

Walgreen Drug Stores, which Walgreen said have been particularly resistant to recession, posted a 10.8 per cent sales gain, and accounted for 77.4 per cent of total company volume, as well as delivering the major proportion of company earnings.

Keep costs down

Keeping the cost of a new house within the budget of prospective buyers doesn't have to mean reducing the quality. Builders now achieve economies with slight reduction in room sizes without reducing livability, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

The size reduction also results in lower heating costs, as the fuel bill is directly proportional to the size of the heated space. This may result in a savings in boiler size in some cases, and willsurely require less hot-water baseboard in the rooms, without reduction comfort.

Don't forget chimney

Regardless of the type of heating already installed in a new house you're planning to buy, make sure it has a chimney, advises the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

You'll be living in that house through all the ups and downs of energy prices and fuel availability, and you want the option to shift heating fuels when you find it is to your benefit.

So if the builder has been talked into using a low-cost, high-energy heating system, you can protect yourself by making sure the flexibility of fuel choice will be available to you in the future.

Order calendar

Salt's a gardening tool! So is a pinwheel, and a birdhouse and flour, even beer! This information is contained in The Living Garden Calendar 1976, a useful and attractive holiday stocking stuffer.

Published by the Audubon Naturalist Society and Concern, Inc. in the form of a twenty-eight page, 9x12 month-by-month calendar with space for daily appointments, notes and other reminders, The Living Garden is full of accurate illustrations of birds, pests, plants and aids so that even the newest gardener can identify and cope with everyday problems.

A gift calendar brings double good cheer for 1976: gardening joy, and support for educational programs which help protect our environment.

The calendar costs $3.25 per copy. Orders and checks should be sent to CAL/Audubon Naturalist Society, 8940 Jones Mill Road, Washington, D.C. 20015.

5 years.

That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature.

Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

We'd appreciate it if you'd help us clear up the confusion. Next time somebody tells you it takes 10 years for a Savings Bond to mature, smile indulgently. And then show him this ad.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Now Bonds mature in 5 years.

Psst.

Yes, you. Interested in a nice inflation hedge? Would you like to put your money into an investment that can give you protection against inflation and let you enjoy it at the same time?

Here's a hot tip.

Buy a house.

Financial advisers point out that in a period of long-run inflation, like the present one that is expected to stretch out into the foreseeable future, owning a home can be a highly valuable asset.

"Setting aside all other considerations for owning or renting, equity in a home is considered one of the smartest moves you can make to protect against inflation." points out Robert G. Walters. senior vice president and general manager of Baird & Warner's residential sales division. "An equity position is considered a great asset when both real estate values and maintenance costs are rising, according to financial insiders."

Even if you are one of the fortunate few who could pay cash for a house if you chose to, investment advisers suggest taking out a mortgage loan.

You can probably invest the money you would use to pay cash for the house and get a return on your investment that would offset your mortgage interest costs. Here's an example.

Assume that you could pay cash for a $50,000 home but decide to make a 20 per cent downpayment and take out a nine per cent mortgage loan of $40,000. The interest you would pay in the first year would be $3,600. But you can deduct mortgage interest payments when you itemize income tax, and that reduces face rate of the loan. How much depends on your tax bracket. The higher the bracket the lower the net cost. For instance, in an 18 per cent tax bracket the net cost of a nine per cent mortgage is 7.38 per cent. In the 50 per cent bracket the net cost is only 4.5 per cent. Let's assume that you are in a 28 per cent tax bracket, which would make your net cost 6.48 per cent.

Here's what that would mean in dollars. If you were not able to deduct the $3,600 of interest payments from your taxable income you would, in you 28 per cent bracket, be paying $1,008 in taxes on that money. But since you are not, you can, in effect, deduct that $1,008 saved from he $3,600 you've paid. This reduces the net cost of your mortgage to $2,592, precisely what you'd pay for a $40,000 loan at 6.48 per cent interest.

Meanwhile, assume that you've taken your other $40,000 and invested it conservatively in a secure tax-free municipal bond that pays 7.5 per cent interest. That's worth $3,000 a year. It's actually worth a lot more on paper because it's tax-free. An individual or family filing joindly in the 28 per cent tax bracket would have to earn $4,167 before taxes in ordinary income to pocket $3,000. That equivalent income represents an equivalent yield of 10.4 per cent on your $40,000.

So when you compare an effective yield of 10.4 per cent with an effective net interest of 6.48 per cent on your loan you're ahead by almost 4 per cent.

"Let's take it a step further," suggests Walters. "Suppose that the home appreciates in value at a rate of three per cent a year, which is actually a conservative rate in an inflationary period. But even at that rate if you sold your house after one year, the price would rise to $51,500. After seven years, which is an average rate of turnover, the house would be worth $61,694 at three per cent a year. That represents a gain of $11,494, more than double your original investment of $10,000."

Assuming that you kept reinvesting the earnings on your bonds at 7.5 per cent a year, your original $40,000 would grow to $66,361.97. That comes to an average yield of $3,766 ayear. In the same time the value of the house has increased at a rate of $1,641 a year. The total is $5,407 each year.

This is offset by your net annual cost of $2,592 on the mortgage loan which assumes that you remain in the same income bracket. Remember, if you go into a higher bracket your interest savings become greater. Also, the interest payments decline steadily as the balance on the mortgage decreases, but that is not taken into account in this illustration.

"Investment counselors suggest that if your investments can earn more than the costs of a mortgage, it is wise to purchase a house with a mortgage, especially if you are going to be living in the area for a number of years," said Walters.

Walters also pointed out that another good reason to buy a home on borrowed money during an inflationary cycle is that you will be paying the loan off with cheaper dollars. Inflation lowers the value of the dollar. Since the payments on a mortgage loan are constant, your future payments will be made with discounted dollars.

Select tree, keep it fresh

Proper selection and care of your Christmas tree will insure lasting fragrance, freshness and safety throughout the holiday season. Purchase your tree as early in the season as possible recommends James E. Schuster, University of Illinois Extension Horticulturist in DuPage County. Waiting to buy your tree only allows it to dry out as it sets in the sales lot. Unfortunately, there is no easy test for determining the freshness of a tree. A freshly cut tree may appear dried out and brittle especially during freezing weather. The moisture in the needles freezes causing them to break easily when handled.

Before putting up your tree, store it for a few days in a cool area with the trunk submerged in a bucket of water. Check the water level frequently because trees that are allowed to dry out never regain their freshness. The right kind of stand will help maintain freshness, says Schuster. The stand should have an adequate water reservoir for the size tree you select. A three or four quart capacity is not excessive for a six to eight foot tree.

A study at the University of Illinois showed that five to eight foot Scotch Pine Christmas trees used, on the average, two quarts of water during the first 24 hours and averaged a quart a day through the first week. A fresh cut on the base of the tree is essential for good water uptake. Old cuts dry out and water conducting tissue become plugged with resin. Make a square or flat cut. Do not make angular cuts, warns Schuster, to reduce having part or all of base not covered by water as it is taken up.

The location of the tree is important. Don't place the tree next to a heat register causing excessive drying.

Almost any species of tree can be used but balsam, douglas fir and scotch pine have become favorites. The balsam is the most familiar. Improved selections have more needles on the twigs and are often described as double or triple needles. Douglas fir is softer with needles all the way around the twig. It tends to be more of a light green color. Scotch pine is a dense tree with long stiff needles. This is a very popular tree because it holds its needles so well.

You can't afford to be wrong. Because if you're in charge of the family budget, you're making decisions about the future, too.

And that's where U.S. Savings Bonds come in. Buy them through your bank. Or encourage your husband to sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where he works.

That way, while you're meeting the day-to-day expenses, you'll still be building a more secure future for your family.

U.S. Savings Bonds. For the woman who really knows a good bargain.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Three attain million status

Ruth Walker

Announcement that Ruth Walker, Robert Geils and Marge Gillen have attained million dollars in sales this year with Homefinders Realtors, has been made by Robert L. Zaun, president of the 12 Homefinders offices in the northwest suburbs.

This brings to 10 the number of million dollar sales people with Homefinders, announced thus far for this year.

Ruth Walker is the manager of the Mount Prospect office of Homefinders, which is located at 900 E. Northwest Highway in the village. With her parents residing and traveling in Europe, she attended high school and college there, becoming proficient in seven languages. She has also traveled extensively through the Middle East, North Africa and recently toured South America.

Prior to joining Homefinders four years ago, Ms. Walker served with the Jan Behrens Insurance Agency, which merged with Homefinders. She achieved her first million dollars in sales that first year.

Ms. Walker is active in the Cambridgette Club, and pursues the hobbies of racquetball, swimming, sailing, skiing and yoga. She became an accomplished gourmet cook during a two-year sojourn in France.

Robert Geils is manager of the Streamwood office of Homefinders at 12 W. Streamwood Blvd. He resides in Hanover Park, with his wife Jean, and their three sons.

Born in Chicago, Geils graduated from Maine Township high school and also attended Wright Junior College and Elgin Community College. Prior to joining Homefinders three years ago, he was a quality control supervisor for a plastic converter.

Geils has frequently been cited as "Salesman of the Month" at Homefinders and served as an Eagle Scout. He pursues the hobbies of carpentry, hunting and other outdoor sports.

Marge Gillen is also with the Streamwood office of Homefinders. This is the first year that she has attained the status of million dollar salesman.

The executive offices of Homefinders are located at 235 N. Northwest Highway in Palatine.

Plants need moist environment

What's missing in the life of your houseplants? You water and fertilize correctly, re-pot as often as needed, prune and trim judiciously. You even have special growing lights in dim corners.

Green and flowering houseplants are cherished for the touch of nature they add to your indoor environment. But how natural is this indoor environment for them?

You may be missing the secret ingredient for houseplant success — a moist environment like the one they evolved in.

Most houseplants hate dry air. Their original environment provided plenty of moist, comfortable air. Whether your prized plant originated in the warm tropics or in cool, damp woodlands, it's just not suited to the arid indoor air of most unhumidified American homes during the winter heating season.

You wouldn't expect a lush philodendron or a frothy fern to survive in the Sahara desert. Yet the relative humidity in the Sahara — about 25 per cent — is higher than the average 13 per cent relative humidity in bone-dry American homes during the heating season, according to the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI).

Heating in winter reduces the relative humidity in your house — and makes your plants, as well as your furniture and skin, fight for the small amount of moisture left in the air.

Extra watering won't help your houseplant — in fact, it's not recommended. Over-watering is the chief problem inexperienced plant lovers run into. Unless the plant's soil is allowed tt become dry periodically, the root system becomes soft and weakened. Under such conditions, disease attacks easily.

"Misting" with a small sprayer is popular among plant lovers. It won't do much about the effects of too-dry air, however, because the benefits last only a couple of minutes. Plant experts do encourage mist-spraying of plants — "it gives people something to do and keeps them from over-watering" — but not as a way to increase the moisture in the plant's environment.

The only practical way to maintain a desirable level of humidity — about 30 to 40 per cent versus the usual 13 per cent — is with humidification equipment, according to ARI. Humidification does more than pamper houseplants. It helps preserve fine furniture, eliminates annoying static electricity, and increases personal comfort.

Central system humidifiers are certified for capacity and performance by ARI. ARI's Certification Directory, available at most contractors' offices, can guide you in choosing the right equipment for your needs.

Spend furniture money wisely

Not the least of a new homeowners concerns is the furnishing of the new purchase once the down payment has been made and the mortgage taken out. So your rooms won't go bare for too long, some general guidelines from James Van Vleck, president of Stanley Furniture Company, will help you get your money's worth on your furniture expenditure.

One economical way of stretching the furniture dollar is by using your imagination to place conventional pieces of furniture in other rooms of the house — or apartment, he suggests. For example, take an essential purchase — the bedroom suite. We recommend buying the whole suite rather than piece-by-piece. Unlike china or silverware manufacturers, most furniture firms do not keep a pattern in their line for more than two years. So don't run the risk of being unable to match up your particular style or design.

However, there's no decorating rule forbidding putting a handsome armoire in the living-room, says this expert. Many interior designers use them for the storage of portable TV sets, record players or tape decks in family rooms or dens. Where there's no fireplace, they make an excellent focal point around which to group sofas and chairs.

Likewise, a gracefully ornamented dresser can look just as appropriate against a living-room wall if the bedroom is too small to take it and a king-sized bed comfortably. Try accessorizing it with a lamp and a grouping of pictures. Its matching mirror can do duty in the entrance foyer. Dressers also look good behind a sofa in the same way you'd place a sofa table or desk.

Similarly, a dining-room set can furnish two rooms instead of one. China cabinets with their lighted display shelves fill a long living-room wall most attractively. A server can find a permanent spot in a hallway and, since most of them are on coasters, it can easily be rolled back into the dining-room when company comes. Flank it with two extra side chairs like professional decorators do. And don't overlook using host and hostess chairs on either side of a coffee table and sofa instead of heavy upholstered armchairs. Small rooms need lighter scaled pieces anyway.

Needless to say, all this advice must be prefixed by the admonition to shop for quality. When you do find a set of furniture you like, examine it carefully. Use your hands to feel that its seams are not rough. Check that joints are dovetailed and glued, not nailed. Open and close all doors and drawers to see that hinges, glides and rollers work smoothly. Test chairs to be sure they don't wobble.

To find the best "buy," watch your local paper for sales. Traditionally, furniture sales are held in January and August. Sale merchandise is usually in stock and delivery is immediate. Always shop at a reputable specialty furniture or department store that provides the services of a refinisher in case adjustments are necessary. Credit terms are often offered by these retailers, too.

Fireplaces are here to stay

A new trend: home builders and developers are now cutting back on frills and luxury amenities.

Cutting out fireplaces too?

"Never," says Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston.

"A home without a fireplace isn't considered a real home by many people. Young and old alike respond instinctively to the tangy, aromatic scent of burning wood — and that occasional hiss of flames from the burning logs.

"Quite often prospective home buyers will scout around until they find a house that does have a hearth," Goss observes.

Recent statistics reflect a tremendous upsurge in purchase of existing facilities.

"The impetus for this turn-around has come in the main from the young marrieds. They are old home-oriented. And they just love to re-do an old home, particularly the chimney hearth."

Two years ago, it was the critical energy shortage that caused many to center their attention on open fireplaces. But even then the underlying reason, as always, was the need for a fireplace as a symbol of comfort and well-being — as well as potential heat.

"Nothing — but nothing — imparts such a feeling of luxury as that open fireplace," Goss notes.

A fireplace is a focal point for any room — one might well call it the anchor.

"And, innovative steps are being taken to make fireplaces even more attractive," he says.

Today, massive brick fireplaces, of the flow-around variety, are dominating the trend.

"A living room, for instance, is divided from the cooking area by a fireplace that serves entertaining as well as at-home purposes."

Goss foresees no end in sight for the fireplace's popularity.

"All reports indicate that the fireplace is an ever-increasing amenity.

"Built-in, wall-hung, free-standing, old or new, whatever.

"You had better believe — fireplaces are here to stay," Goss concludes.

WRESTLING "animal form," movers lift the 600-pound abstract sculpture by famed sculptor Henry Moore onto a pedestal in the lobby of the new Tower office building, part of Gould Center in Rolling Meadows. The travertine marble sculpture, part of Gould's corporate art collection which included Picasso's "Bather," was recently moved to its world headquarters in the northwest suburbs. This marks the opening of The Tower office building managed and leased by IDC Real Estate. The 327,000 square-foot structure is located in a 40-acre park office and sports complex with a lake and covered parking.

Auto space sold out

A solid indication that the auto industry is heading for a big 1976 selling season — at least in the Chicago area — is the report that the 1976 Chicago Auto Show, Feb. 21-29 in McCormick Place is sold out of automotive exhibit space.

Slightly more than 350,000 square feet of display space has been taken, according to Sidney Markovitz, chairman of the Executive Show Committee. Additional displays of auto-related exhibits and special displays of antique and competition cars will also be on hand in the two huge rooms in the lake front exposition hall.

Joseph J. Hennessy, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association which has been sponsoring the show since 1935, reports that more than 600 new vehicles will be displayed including models of every American manufacturer and those representing leading overseas auto firms.

Tax credit ends January 1

The mournful strain of "Auld Lang Syne" won't be the only thing worth crying over this New Year's Eve. If you've been looking for a new home and haven't found one by then, you just might consider shedding a few tears over the fact that the federal income tax credit (which still offers rebates of up to $2,000 to new-home purchasers) expires at the stroke of midnight, January 1, 1976.

The tax credit program was designed to stimulate construction in the housing industry by offering incentives to people to buy new homes, thereby substantially reducing inventories. However, a survey of Chicago area builders revealed differing opinions on the effectiveness of the program.

Ray Fisher, president of Baybrook Associates, Inc., credits the program for many of the 60 sales he has made thus far this year at his Baybrook Park condominium development in Palatine. The 40 two-bedroom homes which remain all qualify for the tax credit because they are priced at February 28, 1975, levels — from $33,490 to $41,490. Sales at the community have also been positively affected by the fact that the developer pays all closing costs and offers 7.9 per cent 29-year financing with five per cent down.

"The only problem with the tax credit has been that so few people understand it," Fisher said. "The government and the building industry have done a poor job of explaining that the credit isn't some kind of deduction, but instead an actual rebate in hard cash totaling 5 per cent of the purchase price of the home up to a maximum of $2,000.

"Another often-missed point is that to get the credit, you have only to sign a contract by the end of 1975 — you have a full year after that in which to sell your existing home and move into your new home," Fisher continued. "Once people understand these things, they take a new interest in buying."

Fisher said that because builders have been artificially holding down prices in order to maintain eligibility for the credit program, he fears that termination of the program in January will bring a rash of price hikes.

"We're sending out a mailing urging our potential buyers to act now while the rebate is in effect," Fisher said.

Ron Benach, president of Lexington Development Corporation, picked up on the "buy now" theme and said, "You know, some people have expressed the wistful hope that the tax credit program will be extended on into 1976, but the evidence is all to the contrary. December 31 is the last hurrah, and if I were a home buyer, I wouldn't gamble on getting another chance."

Benach said that at his firm's Lexington Green condominium coach house development in Schaumburg, there are only 15 two-and three-bedroom homes remaining which qualify for the program. They are priced from $32,990 to $38,490.

"While we can't deny that the tax credit contributed to our sales success, it was only one of many factors," Benach said. "The fact is, our sales were excellent even during the down-market days of 1974."

Norman Hassinger, vice president of sales and marketing for Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., said that some of the other factors playing a part in 1975's improved home sales figures have been lower interest rates, generally improved economic conditions, higher employment and the resolution of important strikes.

Hassinger said the tax credit has had more impact on single-family home inventory than it has had on multi-family inventory simply because more people want a single-family home. "So in multi-family housing, there is still a lot of inventory around, and therefore, I'd like to see the tax credit program extended," he said.

"However, I think a more effective way to help the housing industry would be to reduce interest rates through federally insured programs," Hassinger said. "When you come down to it, it is the high cost of interest that turns buyers off — they simply have trouble making a long-term commitment to pay 9 per cent or more for 29 years."

Edward Zale, president of Meadow Edge Company, said he firmly believes that whether the building industry needs it or not, the tax credit program definitely will not be extended. "I think that Congress really isn't very conscious of the housing industry any more and that the administration feels that the economy is on an upswing and that artificial stimulation is no longer necessary. Frankly, I too would be more than happy if the industry can go back to a more normal state without the sharp ups and downs that result from governmental intervention," he said.

But Zale said that while the tax credit is in effect, "It is silly not to take advantage of it if you're in the market for a new home. What better Christmas present could you give your family?"

Zale has only two homes remaining at his Meadow Edge townhome community in Rolling Meadows which qualify for the program — a three-bedroom two-bath Canterbury model, priced at $54,100, and a three-bedroom 1½-bath Ashley model, priced at $52,200. "But we don't expect sales to fall off when these two are gone," he said. "We've been lucky to be able to offer 7¾ per cent 30-year financing, and our buyers this year have been selecting the individual homes they wanted whether they qualified for the rebate or not."

Albert Zale, president of Zale Construction Company, said that the availability of government subsidized low interest mortgages also contributed to excellent sales at his firm's Lakeside Villas townhome community in Wheeling. The development is sold out except for 16 homes, priced from $46,200 to $46,900, all of which qualify for the tax credit program.

"Sales at Lakeside Villas are up 66-2/3 per cent over what they were in 1974, and there is no doubt that the 7¾ per cent financing and the tax credit program contributed greatly," Zale said. "In fact, I know of two apartment renters who simply were not in the housing market until the tax credit program was announced."

Zale said that the only thing that bothers him about the tax credit program is that it benefits homebuyers, but no other people. "I don't know, there just seems to be something inequitable about that," he said.

Inequitable or not, it has been a real benefit, and according to Arthur B. Gingold, president of The Richards Group of Illinois, Inc., a real sense of urgency is developing as the year and the program draw to a close. "Just before the end of the year, builders traditionally are eager to rid themselves of their inventory. Combine that with the tax credit and you end up with one of the best buyer's markets the nation has ever experienced. There is no doubt about it — now is a great time to buy," he said.

4 insurance packages available

Four special insurance plans are now available to auto and homeowners, parents and senior citizens, from O'Malley & McKay, Inc. in Des Plaines.

According to John O'Malley, president, the low-cost plans, which are designed to provide Chicagoland residents substantial savings on important personal types of insurance coverage, include: The One-Payment Youth Plan; Home and Auto Package; Smokeless Savers Plan; and the Medicare Gap Plan.

The One-Payment Youth Plan consists of one premium of $118 to insure a child from birth to age 23. After age 23, the permanent protection plan of $10,000 is guaranteed with the payment of one $118 premium a year.

A 15 per cent savings on homeowner's and automobile insurance is available when both policies are carried through O'Malley & McKay under its Home and Auto Package. An additional 5 per cent savings is earned when no one in the household has smoked for a period of a year with the Smokeless Savers Plan.

The Medicare Gap Plan pays the hospital bills Medicare does not cover. Available at a cost of pennies per day, The Medicare Gap Plan cannot ever be cancelled and extended care coverage is also included.

Insulation pays

Reduction of heating costs can be easily achieved with insulation above the top floor ceiling, advises the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. The unheated attic is readily accessible, so if you have 2 inches of insulation or less up there, ask your heating contractor how much fuel you can save by adding an additional layer of insulation batts. The colder the climate, the greater is the savings in your fuel dollars and in the nation's energy resources.

Get free booklet

An illustrated booklet detailing do-it yourself tips for home heating boilers has been published by The Hydronics Institute, and is available for 35 cents by writing to them at 35 Russo Pl., Berkeley Hts., N.J. 07922.

The 8-page booklet explains elementary trouble-shooting before calling the serviceman, and also provides a series of energy-saving tips, some of them directly related to economical operation of hot water and steam heating systems.

Maintain efficiency

The baseboard elements which bring the heat into your rooms should be occasionally cleaned for best performance — probably once or twice a year.

The element inside that compact cover consists of small diameter copper tubing with aluminum fins, and as the room air passes up through those fins it picks up heat from the hot water inside the tubing. In the summer, when there are no rising air currents, it is likely that some dust can settle on those fins, reducing their ability to transfer heat.

To remove the dust, reports the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, it is merely necessary to run your vacuum cleaner's thin radiator tool along the upper slot of the baseboard heater. For a more thorough job, the front cover can easily be snapped off, as the brackets are made for that purpose, thereby getting full access to the fins.

You need have no fear of any remaining dust being circulated into the room. There are no blowers in these hot water baseboard heaters, and the air currents are very gentle.

League owners OK Sox sale to Veeck

the old Seattle Pilots in 1969.

Veeck's victory made up for a series of setbacks in his bid to return to baseball — the latest coming just a week ago when the American League owners made him go back to Chicago and come up with an additional $1.2 million in working capital.

When Veeck arrived here early Wednesday morning, he was confident that he had met the leagues demands. But had it not been for an impassioned plea by Detroit owner John Fetzer that some of the other owners put aside their personal prejudices, Veeck would still be on the outside looking in.

"There's been more soul-searching over this thing," Fetzer told his fellow owners. "We have left these people (Veeck's people) over a barrel. We told them to go do it and they did it. This is no time to cry over the spilled milk. We have to be men about it.

"I don't like the idea of letting a guy sit in with us who has called me a son of a bitch over and over, but, gentlemen, we have to take another vote."

Veeck, who had his right leg amputated after a series of operations made necessary by injuries he received as a Marine in World War II, came limping down the corridor of the plush ocean front hotel where the annual baseball meetings are being held.

"I think I made it," he said with a wide grin.

He went into the room where the American League owners had been closeted and it was only a few minutes before the doors swung wide so Veeck could talk about his success.

"I am delighted to be back again," said Veeck. "I only hope we'll be as successful as we plan. My first priority is to make the White Sox a better ballclub."

Veeck said he had to give up some of the stock he was holding for himself in order to meet the league's demand and thus won't have as big a share as he originally planned.

"But, I'll be in control," he said. "And we're not going to cease to try to be entertaining."

Upon officially taking control of the White Sox, Veeck announced that Roland Hemond would continue in his capacity as the club's general manager. Hemond then announced the club's first trade under Veeck's stewardship — three-time 20-game winner Kaat and minor league shortstop Mike Buskey going to the Phillies for right-handed pitchers Dick Ruthven and Roy Thomas and outfielder Alan Bannister.

Veeck also gave a somewhat less than ringing endorsement of the man he inherits as manager, Chuck Tanner.

"He's the manager and he has a contract," was Veeck's terse reply when asked if Tanner, who received a long-term deal from Veeck's predecessor, Allyn, would be back.

Veeck, famed for his flamboyant baseball promotions, first went into the major leagues in 1946 as operator of the Cleveland Indians. After four years, he switched to the St. Louis Browns but sold that club in 1953 after being rebuffed in his efforts to move the Browns to Baltimore.

He returned to baseball in 1959 as owner of the White Sox but sold out his interests in 1961 at the advice of his doctors.

Veeck's group, made up of more than 40 persons, mainly from the Chicago area, purchased 80 per cent of the club with former owner Allyn retaining the other 20.

"I'd be remiss if I didn't express my appreciation to the people of Chicago who came to our aid," said Veeck. "Not to those who came along at the tailend.

"Our people did a phenomenal job in meeting conditions over the past week. It's tremendously important to a beat-up guy like I am to have this kind of support."

BILL VEECK is all smiles after American League owners approved his purchase of the Chicago White Sox on second ballot in Hollywood, Fla. Wednesday evening. The deal means the Sox will stay in Chicago.

A Yule gift for someone who seems to have it all

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

I know what you're thinking — it's just two weeks until Dec. 25 and you haven't found that perfect gift yet.

You're starting to panic because that search through the Neiman Marcus catalogue last weekend failed to find something costly and unique.

When your special someone has just about everything, it's pretty tough to come up with something new and exciting.

You want the best and money is no object, right?

Well, if your favorite he or she can wait until February, one of the biggest, whitest possible Christmas presents is available to a very select few.

It's the rarest, most daring, absolutely thrilling, slightly chilling, most unforgettable and very costly trips this side of a lunar landing.

How would your special someone react to opening a Christmas present that had an invitation to take a two-week trip to Australia? And as the main attraction, meet, photograph and possibly touch the film star of 1975 — a Great White Shark?

Before you say "no way!" to such a wild venture, you might want to find out more about this trip from a man who's going.

Carl Roessler, vice president of the See & Sea Travel Service in San Francisco, said by phone Tuesday that the tour "was completely serious. As a matter of fact, as of this moment the trip is about certain to go."

Since each member of the tour must pay $4,000, plus air fare (about $1,300), for this once-in-a-lifetime experience, the travel agency had to set the minimum number going to three to guarantee its success.

"We had three people, but one guy dropped out," said Roessler. "About 30 others are seriously considering the venture.

"We can take up to eight bodies. I shouldn't have said bodies. Let's make it seven members and a leader, myself."

That might have been just a jaw joke to Roessler. He has seen "Jaws" and termed it "dealing with the mythology of a 25-foot shark that thought like a man."

Roessler said the movie shark's destruction of Matt Hooper's cage and Captain Quint's boat was just as much of a fantasy as Moby Dick.

To put prospective tourists at ease, he said they'd be using two reinforced steel cages that are 6 feet high, 4 feet wide and 3 feet deep. They'll be floating on the surface and will be tethered to the boat by steel cables. Each will hold two people.

"We've never had a diving accident in 10 years," said Roessler. "That's 1,000 trips in 10 years. We're a diver's travel agency."

The agency sets up diving tours all over the world, but this is the first one ever undertaken to visit Whitey. Two questions one would naturally wonder about are (1) what if "Jaws" doesn't show and (2) what if the monster does and there's an accident.

Roessler said his company always carries "pretty sizable liability insurance on all its trips." Everyone taking the tour must have a medical release (anybody with a weak heart should forget it) and sign a waiver. The latter doesn't hold the agency responsible if the Great White is a no-show.

However, the odds are in favor of those taking the trip. The man in charge of luring this whopper to such a costly meeting is none other than Rodney Fox.

Captain Fox has tried eight times and been successful eight times in locating Whitey. When Ron and Vallery Taylor needed these monsters for the filming of "Blue Water White Death" and the live segment for "Jaws," Fox provided the star attraction.

The travel service met with Fox last February to set up this trip. This was done prior to the movie's huge success. Here's a brief outline of the plan:

The day they fly for Australia, the smaller (a 35-footer) of the two boats that will be used will be out at Dangerous Reef baiting for Whitey. This will continue while the tour group visits Sidney. Later they'll fly to Port Lincoln and kill time by doing some diving each day until the bait boat radios them the good news.

Besides the super underwater photography the four people in the diving cages promise to have, Roessler said those on the boat would also be able to shoot "Jaws" at close range. While waiting to go below, they'll be watching Whitey feast on horsemeat tied to the boat.

Just imagine seeing those spooky, black eyes of death just inches away. What could be more exciting?

If this Christmas present appeals to you, call 415-771-0077 for further information.

And have a jawous Christmas.

SMILEY? This familiar face could be a present for yourself or a loved one. That is, if you have the money and the guts for it.

Harper faces tough DuPage

The Harper Hawks will have their hands full tonight trying to snap a five game losing streak when they face off with the DuPage Chaparrals at the St. Viator gym at 8 p.m.

The Chaps, picked by Harper coach Roger Bechtold as the best Juco team in the state, slapped the Hawks 89-64 in the first round of DuPage's holiday tournament to get the current losing streak started.

Steve Loughman had his best game of the year in that contest, scoring 18 points as Harper was forced to go outside by the towering Chaps.

Jim Coutre, DuPage's 6-10 center, flipped in 24 points in the game to go with Mike Ellis' 21.

Mid-Suburban features six gymnastics duels

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Two dual meets tonight matching four of the top gymnastics squads in the Mid-Suburban League highlight the second week of league action when Hersey travels to Prospect and Elk Grove faces off with Arlington in the Cardinals' gym.

Other duels will find Buffalo Grove at Forest View, Conant at Fremd, Wheeling at Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates at Palatine. All meets begin at 8 p.m.

The Hersey Huskies got a big shot in the arm Saturday when they knocked off the state's best teams from last year in the Evanston Invitational.

In a dual meet win over Hoffman Estates last week they flipped a 128.18 score and with Prospect's 121.79 score against Palatine, fashioned with an ailing Doug Zahour, the Huskie-Knight showdown shapes up as a near dead heat.

"The judging at the Palatine meet was very critical," said Prospect mentor Pat Kivland. "In my mind we looked good. I can't figure out why we were so low but I expect us to come up quite a bit."

An 8.45 routine by Dave Scheible on side horse was called the "highlight of the meet" by Kivland. Only Ken Hogrefe, who tossed an 8.8 on the horse for Arlington, had a better score in the opening night of dual meet action.

Jim Tangney also placed second on The Herald Honor Roll with a 7.85 on the P-Bars.

Kivland illustrated the severity of the judging by pointing to the 7.6 mark received by Glen Wilke on still rings.

"Wilke was eighth in the state last year," he said, "yet he dropped more than a full point in that meet. I just don't understand how that is possible."

Danny Muenz shook off a flu bug to win the all-around title at the Evanston Invite with a 7.56 average.

The Hersey senior placed on the Honor Roll at all-around and on P-Bars while teammates Bob Barut and Ray Peters also made the select list for free ex and trampoline respectively.

Arlington has some weaknesses that have been keeping them off the 120 plateau but Tom Chapman's Cardinals are still very much a factor in the MSL chase.

"I was extremely disappointed by the high bar scores," Chapman said. "We've got our problems there but we'll be better."

The Cardinal high bar men totaled just 13.3 points against Conant but the side horse marks of Hogrefe and John Griffin helped to ease that pain somewhat. Hogrefe's 8.8 and Griffin's 8.15 were two of the three best marks posted in the MSL.

Arlington will have their hands full with Elk Grove, though, where Gene Christensen posted league bests on free ex, high bar and all-around to lead the Grens to a 138.90 score against Buffalo Grove.

Matt Damore turned in a 7.85 tramp score, the best of the week, and made the Honor Roll on high bar and all-around. Jim Schwartz also made the Honor Roll on P-Bars where his 7.95 mark was the league's best.

Dale Brungraber will lead the Wheeling Wildcats into action with Schaumburg, seeking to improve on an 8.5 still rings routine which placed him at the top of the Honor Roll.

Wheeling will be shooting for the 110 level while Buffalo Grove, who travels to Forest View, hopes to improve on a 112.30 mark gleaned in a meet where the Bison, according to coach Dennis Mazur, "didn't look too tough."

Kaat to Phillies

Sports world

Sox deal Kaat

The Chicago White Sox, having at last installed Bill Veeck's syndicate as their new owner, engineered the most significant trade to date at the winter baseball meetings Wednesday night when they sent three-time 20-game winner Jim Kaat to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Along with Kaat in the five-player swap, the White Sox dealt minor league shortstop Mike Buskey and received infielder-outfielder Alan Bannister along with right-handed pitchers Dick Ruthven and Roy Thomas.

Kaat, a 37-year-old southpaw, was 20-14 with a 3.11 earned run average this past season and his 235 lifetime wins are the most of any active pitcher in the majors.

Bannister, 24, was the key to the deal for Chicago. A versatile player who switched to the outfield after being signed as a shortstop, Bannister hit .262 in only 24 games for the Phillies last year. He was the No. 1 pick out of Arizona State University in the January 1973 draft.

Ruthven, 24, was 2-2 in 11 games with the Phillies with a 4.17 ERA after being recalled from Toledo on July 4.

Thomas, 21, was 6-3 at Reading of the Eastern League with a 2.55 ERA while Buskey, 25, hit only .243 for the White Sox' Denver farm in the American Association with two homers and 43 runs batted in.

When asked if he was worried about Kaat's oft-repeated desire to retire last year, Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark said, "I'm not worried about that. He certainly isn't going to retire after two straight 20-win seasons. He's too good an athlete for that."

White Sox General Manager Roland Hemond, who will be retained by Veeck, said, "We needed young players to get ourselves off the ground and that's why we made this trade. We were sorry to give up a pitcher like Jim Kaat but we think Bannister and Ruthven will help us over the longer run."

The addition of Kaat marked the second veteran pitcher the Phillies have acquired in the last 24 hours. Tuesday they acquired 33-year-old right-hander Ron Reed from the St. Louis Cardinals for Mike Anderson.

Hull paces Hawks to 7-2 win

Dennis Hull scored two goals and helped on two others as the Chicago Black Hawks skated to a 7-2 victory over the Washington Capitals in National Hockey League action Wednesday night in Landover, Md.

Hull's first goal was sandwiched between tallies by Bobby Sheehan and Cliff Koroll as the Black Hawks moved to a 3-0 lead in the opening period.

Chicago increased its margin to 6-0 in the second period on an unassisted goal by Hull and markers by Pit Martin and Ivan Boldirev.

Washington, which fired a season high 33 shots at Black Hawk goalie Tony Esposito, averted a shutout on goals by Bill Clement late in the second period and defenseman Jack Lynch's score early in the third.

Hull had been listed as doubtful for Wednesday's game because of a bad back.

Texas gets Singer for Spencer

The Texas Rangers admitted Wednesday they were gambling when they gave up first baseman Jim Spencer and "a substantial sum of cash" to acquire veteran righthander Bill Singer from the California Angels.

Singer, 31, was a 20-game winner both in 1969 when he was with the Los Angeles Dodgers and again in 1973 with the Angels, but he was bothered with back and elbow problems most of last season and wound up with a 7-15 won-loss mark and a 4.98 earned run average.

"We are gambling that Singer will be the comeback player of the year in 1976," said Ranger manager Frank Lucchesi. "I have always admired his competitive attitude."

Angel general manager Harry Dalton said he thinks Singer "is sound" but "we don't want to stiff Texas — if Singer can't pitch next season we'll work out something with the Rangers."

Catcher Ray Fosse, traded by Oakland for Cleveland's Cesar Tovar, indicated Wednesday he is happy to return to the Indians and is angry at the A's for not telling him of the deal.

"If the Cleveland people had not called me, I guess I would have found out from a newspaper man," said Fosse. "I'm still waiting to hear from the A's."

Fosse, a defensive standout but an uncertain hitter, tried to get a $15,000 raise at the start of the 1975 season. He was suddenly on the bench.

When he took his salary dispute to arbitration, A's owner Charles Finley said before the arbitrator heard Fosse's case, "If I lose this one, I'll get out of baseball." Finley did not lose that case.

The Indians' call to Fosse brought him other good news. They told him they had just swapped catcher John Ellis to the Texas Rangers for pitcher Stan Thomas and catcher Ron Pruitt. "They said I'm their number one catcher," said Fosse, who spent his first four seasons with the Indians.

Parseghian weighing Jets' job

Former Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian has informed the New York Jets he will let them know either Monday or Tuesday if he is interested in entering negotiations with them for their head coaching post, according to the New York Daily News.

The News, in a story in its Thursday editions, said Parseghian has confirmed the contact with the Jets and said he would "make my decision over the weekend.

"I would like to get it out of my mind by Monday or Tuesday," Parseghian said. "The key thing is whether I decide to re-enter the game."

X-country in classes next year

BLOOMINGTON — A two-class format for the annual Illinois High School Association (IHSA) Boys State Cross Country Meet Series has been approved by the Board of Directors and will be implemented next school year.

Schools with enrollments of 750 students or less will compete in the Class A meet series, while schools with enrollments of 751 or more will compete in the Class AA meet series. Enrollments reported to the Illinois Office of Education for the last school day in September are those used in all IHSA classification purposes. In the case of all-boy schools the reported enrollment is doubled, and in the case of three-year schools an additional one-third of the reported enrollment is added to the three-year figure to provide for each school's four-year count. All high schools in the Herald Area are Class AA.

The IHSA will conduct next school year two-class competition for boys in cross country, golf, basketball, wrestling, and track & field, in addition to a five-class football playoff series. The Association conducts one-class competition for boys in soccer, gymnastics, swimming, tennis and baseball.

The Class A Cross Country Series will begin at the District level at 12 sites. The top five finishing teams, and the top five individuals not members of advancing teams at the Districts will advance to four Sectionals. Again the top five finishing teams and the top five individuals not members of advancing teams will earn berths in the State Final Meet. That will allow for 20 teams and 20 individuals at the Class A State Final Meet.

The Class AA Series will begin at 15 Districts with the top five teams and top five individuals not members of the advancing teams earning berths in five Sectionals. Advancing from the Sectionals to the State Final will be the top five finishing teams at each Sectional, plus the top five individuals not members of advancing teams. At the same time, two teams and the top five individuals not members of the advancing teams from the Chicago Public League Qualifying Meet advance to the State Final. A total of 27 teams and 25 individuals will compete in the Class AA State Final Meet.

Both State Final Meets are scheduled to be conducted at the same site on the same weekend, but time schedules and other administrative details have yet to be worked out.

Area teams lined up in regionals

Most of the area's basketball teams are starting to think about Christmas tournaments, but the Illinois High School Assn. (IHSA) is already setting forth plans for the beginning of March Madness — the annual "second season" for the state's cagers.

The tourney series begins Mar. 1.

Regional tournaments will be hosted by Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Wheeling, and Maine West, among others, with regional champions advancing to the sectionals. The whole thing culminates in the Class AA state finals at Champaign on Mar. 19-20.

Buffalo Grove will entertain teams from Deerfield, Highland Park, Lake Forest, Carmel, and Stevenson.

Hoffman Estates hosts Palatine, Fremd, Conant, Schaumburg, and Lake Park.

At Wheeling, the host Wildcats will battle Forest View, Arlington, Hersey, St. Viator, and Maine North.

Maine West's regional meet will feature Elk Grove, Prospect, and Rolling Meadows.

Regional pairings will be drawn Jan. 13.

Regional tourneys will begin Mar. 1 and continue through Mar. 5. Sectionals start on Mar. 9 and supersectionals will be played Mar. 16.

Class A state finals will be contested in Champaign Mar. 12-13.

Work, patience pay off for Strock

MIAMI (UPI) — It's been three years since Don Strock led the NCAA in passing at Virginia Tech in 1972, but hard work and patience with the Miami Dolphins has paid off.

All the 6-5 Strock did through two seasons and a little more than 10 games this season with the Dolphins was stand on the sidelines and watch Bob Griese or Earl Morrall run the attack.

But with Griese and Morrall injured, Strock stepped into the lineup and became the club's latest hero, leading the Dolphins to a 31-21 win over Buffalo last Sunday. He will try to duplicate that performance Sunday in the Dolphins' do-or-die AFC East matchup with Baltimore.

Strock said he wasn't exactly idle since the Dolphins' picked him in the fifth round of the 1972 draft.

"We've always done a lot of work in practice and I got my share," Strock said Tuesday.

"But last week I worked hard trying to get my timing down with the receivers and sticking with our basic pattern, which is a ball-control game. It wasn't simple, but we went right out at them and things worked out all right."

Strock said he never lost faith in himself or the club while waiting for his chance to show what he could do.

"I've never had any doubts in my own ability. It seemed as if some reporters and writers did before Sunday but I knew I could do the job.

"I'm not the type who complains on the bench or asks to be traded. They've treated me fairly and showed a lot of faith in me. Hopefully I can do the job again Sunday."

Osborne takes leadership role with Chicago Bears

by ED SAINSBURY
UPI Sports Writer

Jim Osborne mixes psychology with tackles for the Chicago Bears and suddenly he's very proficient in both categories.

All season, Coach Jack Pardee has been looking for those who will take on roles as leaders and Osborne, after warming the bench more or less for three consecutive games, became the defensive leader helping the Bears to their third win of the season, over the Detroit Lions.

"I saw it was something we were lacking in," Osborne said, "so I thought 'Why not take the role.' We've got a lot of young guys and in college the coach psyched them up. But in the pro's the young guys don't get it from the coach.

"A lot of our guys look up to Doug Buffone, but Doug has so many things he has to do and concentrate on. So I took it on. Sure, it's psychology. I know that I got to talk to some of these guys, that I got to pat others on the behind, or something.

Jim Osborne

"They're all different, and it takes a different way to motivate them. I guess it's psychology. I try to do something different with each one, to encourage them, and maybe show them myself. It's not telling them 'Make that tackle,' or 'Knock down that ball.' It's just kind of encouraging them and getting us all together.

"I felt it had to be done. I felt we got to get these guys rolling, and if we do nobody can stop them. I know if I can get these guys thinking that I'm doing a job, they'll do it too.

"I remember playing with Alden Roche — he's with the Packers now — in school and how he inspired me. I knew then I felt I wasn't going to let him make all the sacks, I was going to get there to make some myself. So I like to think the young guys think that way."

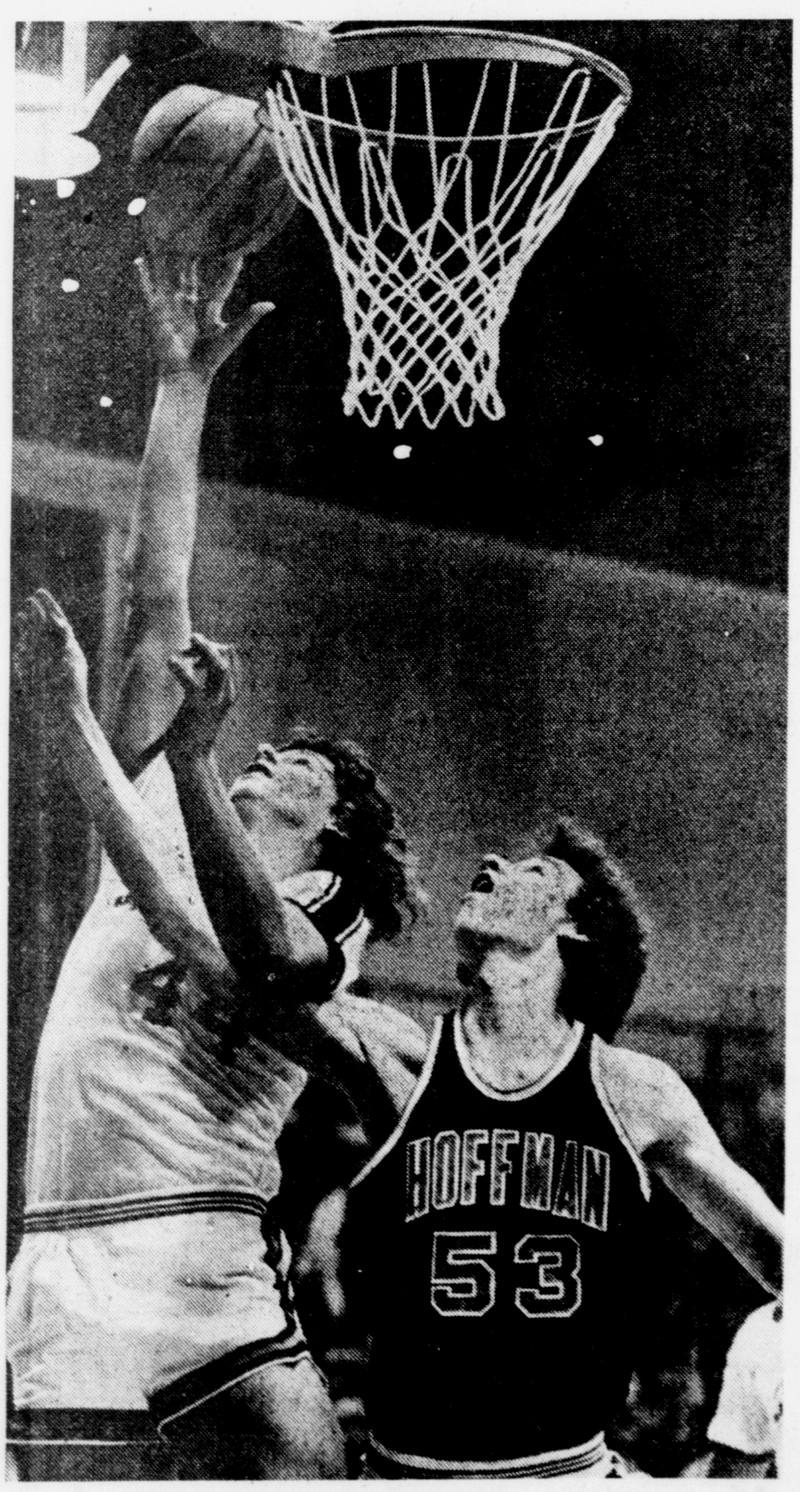
Pardee agreed that Osborne "has taken the leadership role which we have to have," and added, "The lead role is demonstrating most by example. That's what leadership is. Going all out on every play."

Osborne, though he has missed two complete games and played part time in others, still ranks second on the Bears in sacks, and when he's in action with Wally Chambers on the other side of the line, they make a fearsome combination.

"Wally and I usually stunt a lot," he said. "Wally is quick, and I'm stronger. When I'm in there, a lot of times I'll try to go first so the other guys attack me, and he goes around. Or if he goes first, I go around. I like to feel that I've got to perform; I like to feel that I give my best. Wally plays well with anybody, but we kind of know each other."

Osborne conceded it was "frustrating" for him to be on the bench while the Bears were losing because he couldn't make positive moves to psych up his teammates. "I have to do it by showing them," he said, "and you can't show them from the bench."

He probably won't spend much time there the rest of his career. Pardee wants his leaders on the field.



ONE OF THE keys to a recent Buffalo Grove victory was the board play of Fred Heesch (44). His 11 rebounds and 15 points helped lead the Bison to a 65-50 win over visiting Hoffman Estates. Hoffman's Ron Warring (53) had seven rebounds.

Worried about GAS and OIL SHORTAGES?

General Electric's WEATHERTRON® HEAT PUMP

HEATS YOUR HOME WITHOUT GAS or OIL!

COOLS YOUR HOME IN SUMMER TOO!

The Weathertron Heat Pump operates by extracting heat from the outdoor air in winter—from the indoor air in summer. More efficient than ordinary electric resistance space heating systems, provides 1½ to 2 units of heat for every heat unit of electricity it uses depending on the outdoor temperature.

Easily installed to adequate, existing warm air ductwork.

A new era in home climate control begins

About forty-five years ago, scientists began developing a revolutionary heating device that uses the heat of the earth's atmosphere. They called it a heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of fuel oil and gas.

How the heat pump works.
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. Using electricity to run the device, it extracts heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity—like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. The heat pump produces more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system.

It's ready.
It's ideal for new homes because it won't be obsolete in ten years. It's not dependent on the fossil fuels that may not be available in the future. To the homeowner, that means significant long-term savings on heating costs.

The heat pump is a big step in the conservation of scarce fuels. And here in northern Illinois, the electricity you would use to capture the heat comes mainly from coal and nuclear energy, rather than scarce oil and gas.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer (Westinghouse Distrs.), (312) 374-4411, or General Electric Co., (312) 496-6356. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to our marketing engineer.

Camp Duncan YMCA Boys Invitational

The Camp Duncan YMCA Boys' Swim Team hosted an Invitational Swim Meet Saturday at their pool in Volo. The teams participating were Evanston, Mont Clare Leyden, Leaning Tower and Naperville YMCA's and Camp Dunan. Due to the fact that the CDY team is so strong and would dominate the scoring no team scores were kept — emphasis was put on individual achievement. The Camp Duncan strength showed as they captured 20 first places out of 41 events.

Camp Duncan girls

The Camp Duncan YMCA Girls' swim team sent half of its squad against Naperville YMCA at St. Viator Saturday. The meet was very exciting for the CDY swimmers as most of the girls were entered in strokes they usually did not swim, and they were hard pressed in several races to capture first places. Still the final score — CDY 206, Naperville 143.

Coach Eliot tries to let every swimmer swim every stroke at some time during the season so as to develop their all-around swimming abilities and add variety and interest to the meets.

Dear Santa: Please bring me a book

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Buying for children during the holidays is risky business. Too many toys is a waste and clothes are cast aside. But a book is seldom forgotten.

Children are more sophisticated today. They prefer to read about true-to-life situations rather than sugar-coated storybook tales. They prefer the facts straight, not dressed up in narrative form. New historical novels and texts being released in honor of the Bicentennial attempt to paint whole pictures of yesterday's heroes as human beings, not just figurines.

A wide selection currently available in children's literature is coming on full-strength for the holiday season. Area librarians have offered several gift ideas, books they feel contain information or unique illustrations that will continue to spark a child's interest into the new year.

FOR PRESCHOOL children there's "Gertrude the Goose Who Forgot" by Joanne Galdon, Franklin Watts, $5.95. It's Joanne's first attempt at children's literature, though her dad, Paul Galdon, has written and illustrated several including an old standby, "The Gingerbread Boy," Seabury Press, $6.95. He put the stamp of approval on his daughter's book by doing all her illustrations too.

"The Lucky Pokey Bloom" by Ellen Conford, published by Little Brown, $4.95, is a sensitive but fun story for 9 and 10-year-olds, one which doesn't dwell on internal family strife included in much of today's literature for children.

One that isn't brand new but continues to be a favorite is Charlie Brown's Dictionary, World Book, $6.95. It's filled with Charles Schultz's lovable cartoon characters, Charlie Brown, Snoopy and the whole gang. A plus: the dictionary itself is a good one, with updated words and easy-to-understand definitions.

A GOOD BOOK particularly around the holidays is "Christmas Tree Farm" by David Budhill, MacMillan, $5.95. Recommended for children aged 4-8, the book contains a series of illustrations showing how Christmas trees are grown, harvested and brought to the city in time to be trimmed.

Viking Press has printed a delightful collection of spooky folklore entitled "The Ghost Belonged to Me," $5.95.

Another new book released this year for junior high schoolers deals with a child's view of divorce. Written by a Palatine author, Stella Pevsner, "A Smart Kid Like You" is published by Seabury Press, $8.95.

THERE ARE SOME books that appeal to both children and adults. One is a collection of humorous verses and poems that have been handed down through the ages. "What a Wonderful the Frog Are" by Myron Cohn Livingston is published by Harcourt, $5.25.

Another in this same category is an old favorite by Marjorie Williams that has been around for years, "Velveteen Rabbit," Doubleday, $3.50. It's a simple, beautiful story that kids can enjoy though the message behind the words — just what is real? — interests many adults on a more philosophical level.

There are those books, that either by massive size or beautiful illustrations just seem to go along with Christmas. They can be saved and referred to for years.

One from Houghton Mifflin is "Pyramid" by David Macaulay, $7.95. Primarily an art book, "Pyramid" relates in interesting narrative form the historical significance of the pyramids and how they were constructed. Macaulay has also done one on that same order on cathedrals.

"WORKSHOP BOOK of Knitting" presents blown-up photographs of stitches and gives easy instructions for projects kids can make on their own. Written by Ursula von Wartburg, Atheneum, $8.95, the book also includes a background on the history of knitting and how yarn is made.

If you've got an aspiring chess player in your family, adult or child, you might consider investing in "Every Great Chess Player Was a Beginner" by Brian Byfield, Lyle Stuart, $24.95. The large-sized 210-page book contains many beautifully illustrated graphs to guide the novice chess player.

MOST UNUSUAL is "This Is an American Colonial Paper House to Cut Out and Color" designed by Evaline Ness, Scribner's, $6.95. Spiral bound covers and two reinforced pages inside can be positioned into the walls of four rooms, parlor, bedroom, kitchen and dining room. The other sheets are furniture that can be cut out, colored and put together.

Because there are so many history books now out on the market for children, the Illinois Library Association has put together a brochure of recommended ones. Included on this list is "Johnny Tremain" by Esther Forbes, which was originally published in 1943. Some books never die. The list is available in area libraries.

Prices for the books mentioned here may vary slightly with newer editions and increased publishing costs.

The Bicentennial lady

by ELEANOR RIVES

She looks for all the world like she just stepped from the pages of a history book.

When Mary Alice Helms gives her program about life in America 200 years ago, she literally becomes a Pennsylvania housewife of that era. Her burgundy bodice is laced tightly over her "stomacher," a white embroidered triangle that extends down over the stomach. Under the folds of her burgundy skirt is a white shift, and perched on her head is a butterfly cap.

One might imagine, too, that she is wearing stays to produce that small waistline.

"By the time a little girl reaches 5 or 6, she must be in a set of stays," she says, adding matter-of-factly, "We prize good posture and a tiny waist."

THE TIME IS December 1775.

The place is Philadelphia.

Very few people have yet given any thought to the possibility of war, least of all this printer's good wife, a middle-class woman who wears homespun wools and linens and never sighs for the velvets and silks of a lady of wealth.

"I don't weave — there are many weavers in the city," she explained. "But I do enjoy spinning and dyeing, and I do all the sewing for my family."

When her children were little, they wore a "puddin' cap" and perhaps padded clothing to protect them if they fell down. But by 5 or 6, they were dressed exactly like their parents.

THE 1775 WOMAN washed clothes about once a month, recycled textiles far beyond the woman of today. Worn garments were unraveled and rewoven into something smaller. The last raggy vestiges of linen clothing, no longer of reweaving quality, were made into paper. "Paper and wood are very dear in the city," said Mary Alice.

Shoes were neither left nor right, and could be switched for more even wear. They were repaired over and over. Leather garments were popular for men because of their durability. Pewter buttons, if broken, could be recast.

The Mary Alice of 1775 is the daughter of an indentured servant, a man who agreed to four years of servitude to pay for his passage to America. There is no stigma attached to this — it is quite common.

"I CAN READ," she announced proudly. "My father sent me to a 'Dame' school — a woman who taught me in her home. I have also learned along with my sons. Of course my daughters have no need to go to school; by the time they are 14, I will have taught them every detail of managing a household."

Her imaginary 13-year-old daughter of 200 years ago is preparing her hope chest, completing a quilt, embroidering a sampler. She already knows how to spin, knit, crochet, cook over the huge kitchen fireplace, make cheese, soap and candles. From her mother's knowledge of teas and herbs, of healing plants, she is able to care for the sick.

Mary Alice's stepson served an apprenticeship with his father and now works with him in the print shop. Her 16-year-old son, old enough to go into the army, and also to pay taxes, has expressed a desire to enroll at Benjamin Franklin's academy.

HER TWO YOUNGER children exhibit the good table manners their mother taught them, standing to eat or sitting down only when invited. Never do they ask for seconds, smell the meat, nor take salt with anything other than a clean table knife.

And on she goes, this Pennsylvania woman, dishing up fascinating, historical facts in easy conversational style, then inviting questions from the audience.

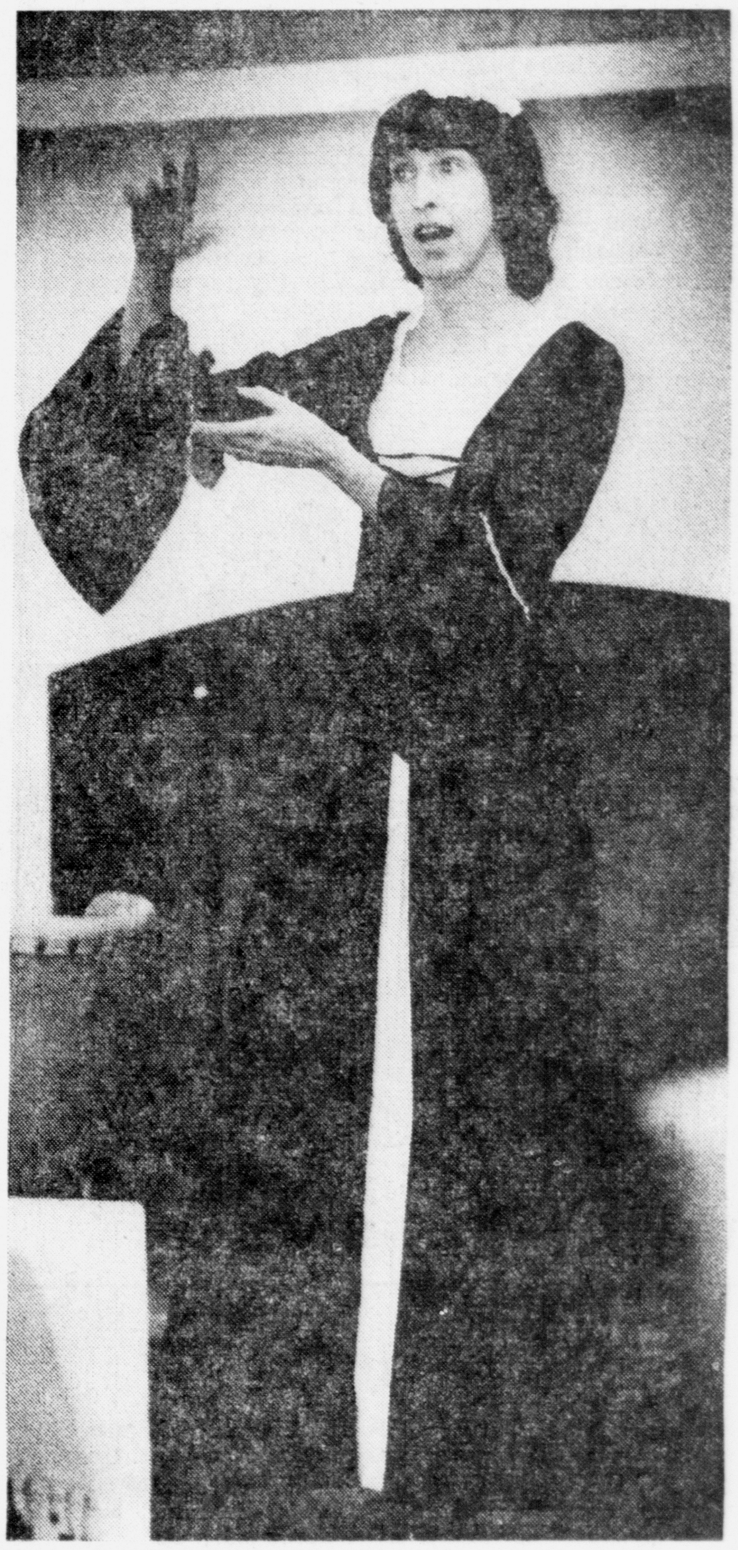
What prompts a woman, a former teacher, to immerse herself in an historical period, dress for the part, and kindle the interest of others by breathing life into stories of the past?

"A workshop I attended convinced me that one should do what one likes to do best," explained this real-life mother of two. "I love to read and I love to talk."

THIS IS THE first season Mrs. David Helms of Des Plaines has presented her program, "The Good Wife of Philadelphia." Adapted to each audience, it fascinates children as well as adults. "Children ask such fantastic questions!" she exclaimed. "Like 'Were there restaurants?' — 'Didn't people take baths?' — 'What was school like?' "

Most of her research was done last spring and summer. The Helms family has visited Philadelphia several times, Old Sturbridge Village and Williamsburg.

Presentation of "The Good Wife of Philadelphia" may be arranged by calling Mrs. Helms at 296-3583. Especially appropriate for the Bicentennial year, her program brings history to life and puts life into history.



HER DAY, FROM start to finish, is described by Mary Alice Helms as she portrays a Philadelphia woman in 1775. "That summer we housewives made 13,000 coats for our soldiers," she said.

IT'S FUN TO PLAY outdoors in winter when you're dressed in warm hats, mittens and scarves like these on Mark Gwidt, Nick Burke and Chris Negovetich. The children at Maryville Academy, Des Plaines, have been given a donation of the same by Arlington Heights Jaycee Wives. Co-chairmen of the project were Mrs. Kathy Gwidt and Mrs. Lynn Negovetich.

Too great expectations may bring on the holiday blues

by AL ROSSITER JR.

Heightened expectations that go unfulfilled at Christmas can be set-up for the holiday blues.

Psychiatrists often see more of this usually mild form of depression around that period in people who think they should be having a good time when they aren't.

The blues are marked by disappointment, discouragement, sadness, withdrawal and pessimism. Doctors say this low feeling often passes when the holidays end.

"There's just a cultural expectation that Christmas means joy," said Dr. Dean Schuyler of Rockville, Md., a psychiatrist who coordinated depression research at the National Institute of Mental Health before entering private practice last year.

"IF YOU'RE ALONE in October, it in itself will not get people down. But if you're alone at Christmas time, that can get people down because it violates what they expect Christmas to be like."

Dr. Myrna Weissman, a psychiatrist at Yale University's Depression Research Unit, said people see on television and in the newspapers what it's supposed to be like. Families are supposed to be together, and yet they may not have families.

In a telephone interview, she said another factor may be tension that breaks the image of joy and happiness at family gatherings.

"We're all enchanted by these cozy scenes, and we're being led to think we should expect that," said Dr. Michael J. Petite, assistant professor of psychiatry at Georgetown University. "Who says we're supposed to expect it?

"IF YOU DON'T get along with your family the rest of the year, why should you have cozy warm feelings toward one another at Christmas time?

"But if you're torn between the two, saying I should have these feelings, but I don't, you start to internalize the negative feelings, saying it's not appropriate to be angry because it's Christmas. And you start becoming low."

Petite also said financial problems, caused in part by over extension of gift buying, also could play a role in holiday depressions.

Dr. Aaron T. Beck, professor of psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, said some cases of the holiday blues result from regarding Christmas as a time marker.

"As people get older, the holiday season seems to have a depressive effect because they can't recapture the pleasures of the past," he said.

Dr. Weissman said too much drinking during the holiday period also can contribute to the blues. She said people should use restraint and also should not get overtired.

Petite also had advice on avoiding holiday blues:

- Don't over-anticipate; "Anticipation is frequently better than the actual event."
- Don't have unreal expectations. Petite said some people say, "It's Christmas so let's forget our troubles." They think the Christmas spirit will end domestic or other troubles they've been having.
- Don't let problems build up inside. If the issue is worthwhile, discuss it, he said, or learn to shrug it off.

Diabetes may trigger a stroke

Can you tell me if it is possible for a person to have a stroke and diabetes hit at the same time, or does the diabetes act like a stroke? Is there such a thing as diabetic coma? Just how does it affect a person, and could it cause death? Anything you can answer on this subject would be greatly appreciated.

A stroke is caused by inadequate oxygen supply to part of the brain, and that usually means a blockage in circulation in a major artery of the brain.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

The oxygenation of the brain can be affected by a host of contributing factors. If an elderly person has disease that closes part of the arteries to the brain and then has pressure applied to an artery from a neck deformity from arthritis, the combination can induce a stroke. If a person develops a severe anemia and already has a limited circulation to the brain that may cause a stroke.

Shock from any cause or a sudden drop in blood pressure, if there is already disease in the arteries, can lower the circulation to the brain a critical amount and induce a stroke.

STROKES ARE SO common that almost everyone has someone in the family or a near relative who has had one. There are about 200,000 deaths each year in the United States from strokes. Those who want more information on strokes and how to prevent them can send in 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 2-5, Strokes: Cerebral Vascular Accident-Cerebral Thrombosis, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019.

About two-thirds of patients who develop a stroke have either diabetes or high blood pressure. The control of both conditions would go a long way toward eliminating the high incidence of strokes in our culture.

Although the basis for diabetes is probably with a patient from birth, diabetes usually develops slowly into adult onset diabetes. If it is not managed properly, a person can develop a condition called diabetic coma.

Diabetic coma is simply a coma that results when the chemical balance of the body is badly out of balance. The body can't utilize glucose normally, and the end result is the formation of excessive amounts of strong acids which leads to diabetic acidosis and may progress to coma with unconsciousness and shock.

DURING COMA the shock-like reaction may lower the blood pressure enough to induce a stroke if a person already has disease in the arteries to the brain.

You can get more information on diabetic coma and how diabetes works by using the same procedure mentioned for getting information about strokes, but ask for The Health Letter, number 3-10, Diabetes, The Sweet Sickness, which explains how acidosis results in formation of ketones and gives the patient an acetone breath.

The acetone breath is often confused with alcohol. If the person is confused, which is often the case, the combination may lead an unsuspecting law enforcement officer to think he is drunk. The result is a disaster with a critically ill patient ending up in jail in less than optimal circumstances when he should be getting emergency treatment in a hospital.

Do ads encourage hormone use?

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

The hormone pills which millions of women have taken for relief from menopausal distresses have been linked to cancer of the womb lining.

A group of doctors warned in the Dec. 4 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine that "extreme care" and "prudence" be exercised by doctors in prescribing the pills, and that they should not be used at all by women with cancer in the family, heavy smokers or women with histories of migraine headaches or blood vessel problems.

An estimated 6 to 10 million women currently use such estrogen pills, 80 per cent of them taking Premarin made by Averst Laboratories.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Food and Drug Administration's advisory committee is scheduled for Tuesday to discuss the implications of the discovery.

The medical journal reported on studies by the Kaiser Permanente Medical Center in Los Angeles, the University of Washington and other Seattle medical centers and the California state tumor registry showing that the risk of cancer is increased from one case to has high as 14 out of every 1,000 women on the menopause pill.

The risk is comparable to smoking 20 cigarettes a day, one of the doctors said.

According to a report in the Washington Post, some doctors have been concerned that the pills have been overused, "with the encouragement of Averst ads showing gray-haired but sexy-looking women attracting male admirers."

IRONICALLY, the Federal Trade Commission is currently trying to foster advertising of prescription drugs after ruling that pharmacists traditional ban on advertising is anti-competitive.

Consumer groups had been concerned that people were unable to find out the prices of prescription drugs, which varied widely among drug stores. Before the FTC took action, several major drug chains began posting prices and quoting them over the phone. Since the FTC ruling, more pharmacists have adopted these practices.

But the FTC apparently is not content with price posting and phone quotations. Staff members reportedly have noted an absence of drug promotion in newspapers and on television.

EXPLAINED A spokesman for Osco Drugs, "We're trying not to contribute in any way, shape or form to drug abuse."

At the same time, the FTC is now desperately trying to crack down on the advertising of non-prescription drugs, which are heavily promoted via mass media and heavily used by Americans — even though the FTC, FDA, and medical researchers have repeatedly found many of them to be ineffective and/or dangerous.

It is a strangely contradictory position the FTC has assumed. It is difficult to understand why consumers need more than availability of price information where drugs are concerned. It is highly possible that a number of the women on the now-suspect estrogen pills pressured their reluctant doctors into prescribing it because of some Madison Avenue image.

Stretching typewriter ribbon life false economy

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: This has become pretty much a "typewriter culture" and yet so many people seem to understand their machines less than anything else they own and use. I'm in typewriter repair service and I think many troubles come from the false economy of trying to stretch ribbon life.

When the impression starts to get light, the average person starts to punch harder. With harder impressions, the keys pull ink from the ribbon, it gets dry and the letters grow even more fuzzy. What's more, hard punching can lead to damage, like having the solder holding the keys loosen. Replacing ribbons when they begin to show wear saves effort and some repair bills.— Eddie Crimmins.

Dear Dorothy: Tried the suggestion of a reader to use a baking soda and vinegar solution on a stopped-up sink, but no sale. Then tried your washing soda treatment. Bless you, it saved us $60, which is what I had to pay last year for the same thing.—Mrs. Lois Albin.

Glad it worked. This all started years ago when our plumber offered some excellent advice. His main suggestion was to make a habit of pouring three tablespoons of washing soda down the sink once a week, followed by very hot water. Provided that the drainpipe has the proper slope, this weekly routine keeps kitchen drains clear.

For new homemakers: Cooking oil can be reused for deep frying if you will fry a piece of potato in it after you're through with your other frying. Strain the oil through cheesecloth or a very fine strainer and store it in a cool, dark place. Opened containers of cooking oil, if not used frequently, should be refrigerated.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Mom's shoes part of bridal attire

Her mother's shoes were the "something borrowed" for Peggy Jane Roe's marriage to Steven M. Williams, son of the W. Forbes Bartons, Arlington Heights. Both Peggy and Steven lived in Schaumburg before their marriage.

The ceremony took place Nov. 22 at 2 p.m. in Evangelical Free Church, Arlington Heights.

Peggy, daughter of the Kermit Roes of Taylorville, Ill., wore a white Qiana gown trimmed in accordion pleats and Venise lace. Fresh flowers held her chapel-length veil in place. She carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis, apricot roses and ivy.

Cindy DeHart, Taylorville, was maid of honor. Karen McLane, Chicago; Sandy Keefe, Skokie; and the groom's sister, Peggy, were bridesmaids.

They all wore orange gowns and jackets trimmed in white lace. Their autumn-colored bouquets were composed of roses, mums, straw flowers, daisies and baby's breath.

THE GROOM'S brother, Robert of Tulsa, Okla., was best man. His cousin, Dr. Larry Sexton, Elgin; the bride's brother, Dr. David Roe, Oak Park; and Mike Hopkins, Urbana, were groomsmen.

A buffet reception for 200 guests followed in the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn. The couple then left for a honeymoon in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven M. Williams

Peggy is a graduate of the University of Illinois and teaches at Lincoln Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

Steven, also a graduate of the U of I, is an alum of Arlington High School and works at Edward Hines Lumber in Chicago. He and Peggy are living in Palatine.

Bride made all the gowns for ceremony in Palatine

All her attendants' ensembles plus her own bridal gown were sewn by Eve Woolsey, daughter of the Chester D. Woolseys, for her wedding to Thomas J. Neubauer, son of the Thomas J. Neubauers. Both families live in Palatine.

The candlelight ceremony was held Nov. 21 in St. Theresa Catholic Church, Palatine, at 7:30 p.m.

Eve made her princess-style gown of candlelight satin with a lace overlay on the bodice and sleeves. A lace coronet held her three-tiered cathedral veil in place, and she carried a presentation bouquet of white roses and earth-toned mums.

Her sister, Kay Heafner, Oak Park, was matron of honor, with Wendy Hansen, Arlington Heights, and Janis Hanna, Carbondale, as bridesmaids. The groom's sister, Elizabeth, was junior bridesmaid.

THOMAS GRAFF, Palatine, was best man. Groomsmen were Mike Kaminski, Arlington Heights, and the groom's brother, Dan, while junior groomsman was the bride's brother, Lee.

Eve is a '69 graduate of Fremd High School and attended Southern Illinois University for two years. She is employed at the First Arlington National Bank in Arlington Heights.

Tom, also a '69 graduate of Fremd, attended SIU and the University of Illinois Circle Campus. He works in Arlington Heights for Applied Engineering.

The newlyweds are living in Palatine.

Yule dance set for Cotillion

The Cotillion Club of Arlington Heights has scheduled its Christmas formal dance for Saturday, Dec. 20, at Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca.

On the dance committee are Mrs. Paul LeZotte, Mrs. Robert Jayne, Mrs. Lou Mehl and Mrs. Robert Harris.

This is one of three dances a year for the membership of approximately 100 couples. The club is now in its 26th year.

VFW Ladies present flags to 14 schools

The Ladies Auxiliary to Elk Grove VFW Post 9284 has presented a Bennington Bicentennial Flag to the 14 schools in Elk Grove as part of the Auxiliary's Americanism, youth activities and community service programs.

Lorraine Champa, chairman, and Marlene Mulhern, co-chairman, made the presentation to representatives of each school during a luncheon hosted by the Auxiliary in the post home last week.

The Bennington Flag was supposed to have been used by the Bennington militia at the battle of Bennington in August of 1777. Believed to be the oldest Stars and Stripes now in existence, it was chosen by the Horizons '76 coordinating committee as the official Elk Grove Bicentennial Flag.

Bonsai for unusual Christmas gift

by Mary B. Good

Seeing more of those charming, diminutive bonsai pots around lately reminds me that a bonsai tree might make an unusual gift under the Christmas tree.

Bonsai are expensive if you buy them already made up. But you can get one started at a fraction of the cost.

There are four main points to remember in bonsai (miniaturizing trees into living sculpture): confine roots to the small container, prune top growth each year, provide proper conditions for growth of the tree, and position the trunk and branches into a pleasing design.

START BY PLACING a screen over the drainage holes of the bonsai container you have selected. (Two local outlets for bonsai containers are Chas. Klehm Nursery in Arlington Heights and D. Hill Nursery in Dundee.) Cover the screen with a fourth inch of potting soil and vermiculite mixed.

Select a suitable subject such as fig, variegated euonymous, ming aralia, Japanese red maple, or ask your nurseryman to make a suggestion if you're stumped. Trees grown in cold climates such as pines, spruce, flowering cherry, etc., will not survive long indoors as they need a cold period of dormancy in winter. If the winter temperature should go above 35-40 degrees, they will die. It's as simple as that.

After you have your pot and your tree, the next step is to spread the roots, scrape away as much soil as possible. Retain all the small, fibrous roots possible. Position the tree in the pot and work potting mix in and around the roots. Press firmly to eliminate air pockets. Be sure the trunk is above the sides of the pot and not planted too low.

WATER THE PLANT by misting gently until the soil is thoroughly saturated. Keep the plant away from direct sun for the first 10 days. Watch it to see how often to water. Don't fertilize until after new growth has started. Remember that the bonsai will need root pruning and top pruning when roots become crowded.

Use copper wire to shape the bonsai into your desired effect. Try to use the natural leaning of the plant to lend itself to artistic shape. The wire should be stiff enough to hold the trunk and branches. As the tree grows, the branches become fixed in the position you have wired it, and the wire is removed.

Juniors collecting dog food labels for blind

Dog and cat owners are urged to save Vet, Perk and Peak pet food labels during the coming year for the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines' coupon collection campaign. Coupons found on Perk Food Co. products will provide a blind serviceman with a seeing-eye dog from the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation.

To facilitate collection of the coupons, the Juniors are placing containers in chain food stores, grocery stores and meat markets in the area. The containers will be labeled "Help Us Collect Dog Food Labels for the Blind." Inquiries may be addressed to Mrs. Ellis Lipp, 296-5392.

Depending upon the redemptive value of each coupon, approximately 30,000 coupons are needed to purchase each dog. All coupons collected by the Juniors are credited to their account on an accumulative basis by the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation.

Seeing-eye dogs provide travel, mobility and an opportunity for economic self-sufficiency for the blind. The serviceman receiving a guide dog from the Foundation will also receive free transportation to and from the training center and four weeks board and lodging while being trained to use the dog.

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Jerry Weikle, 11, of Newport News, Va., for his question:

EXACTLY HOW LONG IS A DAY?

This is one of those tricky questions. For example, the ordinary day is based on the earth's rotation. This can be measured in different ways, and the answers do not agree. What's more, our dizzy old planet varies its speed slightly as it spins around.

The calendar insists that there are exactly 24 hours in every day and 365 days in a year, plus an extra day for leap year. With a few modifications, such as time zones, this system works quite well all around the world.

However, the day is based on the time it takes the earth to complete a rotation on its axis. And when it comes to the motion of heavenly bodies, we cannot depend upon them to be perfectly precise. For example, sometimes the earth spins a little slower or faster. In September, the days may be half-a-minute shorter than 24 hours. Around Christmas time, the days may be half-a-minute longer than 24 hours.

More problems arise when we set about measuring the earth's rotation speed. It can be measured by the sun or by the distant stars — and the results do not agree. This is where some people tend to get picky and insist that the day is four minutes short of 24 hours.

The solar day is measured by the sun. It begins when the noonday sun is highest in the sky and continues until the next high noon. The days vary because the rotation speed varies. But the problem is solved by computing all the days of the year. The result is the mean, or average, solar day — which is 24 hours.

The sidereal day, or star day, measures the earth's rotation by the stars. It begins when a certain star passes a certain point overhead and continues until the star returns to the same position. However, the stars rise a little earlier each night. Hence the sidereal day is a little shorter than the solar day. To be more or less exact, the difference is three minutes and 56 seconds.

The year is based on the time it takes the earth to orbit the sun. However, the earth's daily rotations do not fit neatly into this time period. During the year, the earth spins around 36 times — plus a quarter-turn. So every fourth year we gather up the four quarters to make an extra day. We tack it onto the end of February and have ourselves a leap year with 366 days.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Jennifer Baxter, 8, of Atlanta, Ga., for her question:

WHAT MAKES THE RINGS AROUND SATURN?

The sun has a family of nine planets, and each orbits around the sun in its own path. Earth has a third orbit. The next lane outside the earth's orbit belongs to Mars. Then comes giant Jupiter. The sixth orbit from the sun belongs to Saturn. And of all the planets, only Saturn is inside its own circle of golden rings. It's too bad that we cannot see them without a telescope.

Nobody knows for sure how those golden rings gathered around Saturn, but astronomers have a few suggestions .Perhaps, long ago, one of Saturn's many moons came too close to the big planet. Perhaps Saturn's gravity tugged so hard that the falling moon shattered into a zillion pieces. If this happened, the fragments would be likely to orbit around and around, above the big planet's waist. Perhaps this is how the razzle-dazzle rings were formed — but nobody is absolutely positive.

Lightner response does job in this play

Yesterday's article discussed the Herbert convention in which the next ranking suit is used as the negative response to a strong two bid. The convention is interesting, but it has the serious weakness that it gets you into lots of trouble when you want to make a positive response in the next ranking suit. We feel that this disadvantage overbalances its advantages.

Today's hand shows an example of a modification first suggested by Theodore Lightner in 1933 or '34. The Lightner variation provides that when you open with two; your partner makes a negative response, and you simply rebid to three of your own suit, partner may pass with a real blank.

We recommend the Lightner variation strongly provided that you understand it only applies when there is a negative response followed by a simple rebid of the first suit on a really hopeless hand.

Many builders offer fireplace

The fireplace — whether it is gas fired, electric or natural wood-burning, prefabricated or masonry, wall-mounted or free-standing, marble, brick or stone faced — is still the hottest single amenity a builder can offer.

"From the beginning of time, people have been fascinated by fire," said Ed Havlik, president of Home Data Corp., and executive vice-president of COMCO, a consulting firm specializing in the marketing of residential housing. According to Havlik, "In prehistoric times, the fireplace was the central source of heat for the caveman's home and interestingly, may be again.

"This concern for energy conservation is evident in the new thermal-efficient prototype home already built in Cleveland and the one being planned by the Home Builders Association of Great Chicago at Green Trails in Lisle," he said. "Part of the concept is to make the fireplace the primary source of heat not only in one room, but in other areas of the home," said Havlik.

"We have been building homes in this area for 25 years and have always offered fireplaces, because we feel they are especially important in the Chicago climate," said Ed Zale, president of Meadow Edge Company, developers of the new Meadow Edge townhouse community in Rolling Meadows. According to Zale, nearly half of his Meadow Edge homeowners buy the optional $1,850 cedartrimmed fireplace. Also offered is an optional gas line for persons who want to convert from wood-burning to gas-fired.

"The true fireplace lover is a purist and will only settle for a wood-burning fireplace, but we've found that many people soon tire of the work involved and actually like the idea of a fireplace better than the fireplace itself. We also view the fireplace as a decorative piece of furniture that becomes the focal point of a room," said Zale, who will custom build any fireplace his buyers can describe — either through drawings or photographs in magazines.

He is also one of the few builders in this market, offering an optional fireplace in the master bedroom suite of one model. "But the family room seems to be the most popular location for the fireplace, because it is generally associated with family groupings and social gatherings," he said.

Arthur B. Gingold, president of The Richards Group of Illinois, Inc., agrees. "Of our homeowners, 60 per cent buy a fireplace and of them 86 per cent want it in the family room," said Gingold.

However, whether a person buys a fireplace or not depends on what he can afford. "Some people consider fireplaces necessities, while others think of them as luxuries," he said. Based on that, he has included a fireplace in all family rooms at Manchester, a luxury single-family home development in Lincolnshire, and offers fireplaces as optional features at both of his townhouse communities — the Crossings in Buffalo Grove and The Fairway of Country Lakes in Naperville. "Although everyone wants a fireplace some people simply need wall space more."

Gingold's fireplaces are wood-burning with gas starters, faced in brick, wood or marble and priced from $1,500 to $2,300. "Brick is definitely the most popular fireplace facing."

Bill Maybrook, vice president of Lexington Development Corporation, builders of a new condominium coach house development in Schaumburg, believes that home ownership is often equated with fireplaces. "The idea of a cozy fireplace is a strong psychological factor in the mystique of homeownership," said Maybrook.

At Lexington Green, buyers have their choice of gas-burning fireplaces, complete with gas logs and protective screen, in brick, Colonial white wood or cultured marble facing and either a slate or marble hearth, ranging in price from $735 to $795.

According to Maybrook, fully half of all homeowners purchase a fireplace. "About 75 per cent of our buyers are first-time homeowners, coming from apartments, and very few apartments include fireplaces, he said.

One apartment community that does include fireplaces is Barrington Lakes in Hoffman Estates. "We offer fireplaces as part of our total amenity package, and it puts us several steps ahead of the competition," said Ira Norris, vice-president of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., the Los Angeles-based developer of Barrington Lakes.

"I don't understand why more developers don't put fireplaces in apartments, because, in truth, apartments are homes and a fireplace simply creates a more homey atmosphere," he said.

Norris believes that people are incurable romantics about fireplaces. "When you consider the hypnotic effect of the fire, the escapism, the crackling sound of wood burning and the beautiful aroma it creates, you can easily understand why the fireplace is the sexiest amenity a builder can offer," he said.

As for energy conservation as a reason to buy a fireplace, one must consider the energy burned in relation to the heat given off:

Fact: only 15 per cent of all heat generated by a fireplace goes into the room. The rest escapes up the chimney.

Fact: if you have a gas-or electric-fired fireplace, you will obviously use more, not less energy.

Fact: In the summer, the flue enables warm outside air to seep into the home you may be trying to air condition, thereby, increasing the energy yo umust use to offset this effect.

Fact: In the winter, the cold outside air displaces the warm air in the room if the fireplace is not being used, creating a draft and requiring more heat to offset.

So, it appears, until engineering technology and the design of fireplaces eliminate these problems energy conservation is not a valid reason to buy one. The simple love of a fireplace, most builders agree, is still the most valid and traditional reason to buy one.

Protect garden this winter

Winter is just around the corner. With the mild fall, we may have forgotten to properly protect plants from the ravages of winter. Also, keeping a close watch on what is going on in the garden will help lessen damage that will have to be repaired next spring. Damage due to freezing and thawing is the first and foremost type of injury in the midwest, says James E. Schuster, University of Illinois Extension Horticulturist in DuPage County.

Other common types of winter injury include sunscald, frost cracking, rodent injury and snow and ice breakage.

Snow and ice breakage is seen most commonly on tall upright evergreens that split open under heavy snow loads. Tying the branches together with heavy cord and shaking off snow accumulations will help prevent this type of damage. Frost cracking shows up as long vertical cracks in the bark of trees. This is usually seen on the south or southwest side of trees. Young smooth barked trees are especially susceptible.

Cracks are caused when the sun heats up the trunk and then this area freezes at night. This type of injury can be prevented easily by providing artificial shade, says Schuster. Wrapping the trees with tree wrap is one method. Painting the trunk with white latex paint or just laying a board against the trunk will help.

Heaving of plants is again the result of soil warming during the day and freezing at night. This results in forcing the plant out of the soil and exposing roots to the air. Perennials are often seen heaved out of the soil. This can be avoided by applying a straw mulch around the plants after the soil freezes. This will help keep the soil frozen.

Rodent damage is commonly seen on young trees, as a result of these animals feeding on the bark. The first thing to do is remove all tall grass from around the trunk, says Schuster. This discourages nesting. Hardware cloth also is used to provide a mechanical barrier. Chemical repellants are also available.

Olds sales strong

Oldsmobile Division strengthened its hold on third place in domestic sales for the 1975 calendar year by delivering 61,055 cars in November, compared with the 43,756 sold in the same month last year.

This boosts the division's 11-month total to 578,412, well ahead of its nearest third-place rival, and represents a 17.9 per cent improvement over the 490,701 sold in the same 1974 period.

Cutlass, the hottest-selling domestic intermediate, continues to spearhead Oldsmobile's performance. Sales of the popular Olds midsize car reached 33,934 in November to account for 55.6 per cent of the division's monthly total.

During the last 10 days of the month, Oldsmobile dealers sold 16,428 cars, compared with 14,816 delivered in the same period last year. This marks the eleventh consecutive 10-day period that Olds sales have improved over year ago levels.

The impersonal future?
That's not our way of doing business.

Sure we have computers! In fact we have one of the most advanced Data Processing Departments in our industry. But it still takes people to write the programs and design the systems to produce the correct and most efficient results. Our goal is to make sure all information concerning every policyowner is complete and accurate. As long as there are programmers and analysts like myself working on our systems, there will always be a personal aspect to Data Processing. Computers are only a tool. It is people who still count.

A TWELFTH NIGHT DINNER

A Twelfth Night dinner party is a festive way to usher out the holiday season and is often called the feast of Epiphany. It is a celebration of joy.

This dinner takes its mood from Panama, where Twelfth Night is a very special dinner with nuts and fruits incorporated in the family's best recipes.

ROAST DUCKLING WITH MUSHROOM WALNUT STUFFING

- 1 frozen duckling (4½ to 5 pounds), defrosted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 cup chopped, peeled cooking apple
- 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
- ½ cup chopped onions
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 3 cups (1½-inch) bread cubes
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ teaspoon leaf thyme
- ⅓ cup honey
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons flour

Wash and drain duckling; dry skin gently with paper towels. Sprinkle body and neck cavities with ½ teaspoon salt. Cook celery, apple, mushrooms and onion in butter until vegetables are tender but not brown. Stir in bread cubes, walnuts, thyme and ¼ teaspoon salt; toss gently to mix. Fill neck and body cavities loosely with stuffing. Skewer neck skin to back. Cover opening with aluminum foil. Tie legs together loosely. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Place in 325 degree oven until drumstick meat is tender, about 3 hours. To make glaze, combine honey and lemon juice; bring to boil and boil 2 minutes. Brush duckling with glaze several times during last 30 minutes of baking time. Remove duckling and place on serving place on serving platter; keep warm. Drain fat off pan drippings. Pour drippings into measuring cup and add water as needed to make 1½ cups liquid; return to pan. Stir in flour and remaining ¼ teaspoon salt. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve with duckling and stuffing. Makes 4 servings.

JEWELED HOLIDAY SALAD

- 1 can (17 ounces) fruit cocktail
- 1 medium-size orange
- ¾ cup port wine
- 1 package (3 ounces) raspberry flavored gelatin
- ⅓ cup walnuts, chopped
- Sour cream, optional

Drain fruit cocktail, reserving syrup. Coarsely grind whole orange in blender. Combine port and reserved fruit syrup; add water to make 2 cups liquid. In saucepan, stir together ground orange and 2 cups liquid mixture. Boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; add gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Add fruit and nuts. Pour into 4 cup mold; chill until firm. Unmold; serve with sour cream dressing, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

TWELFTH NIGHT CAKE

- 5 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- ¾ cup sifted flour
- 5 ounces dark, sweet chocolate (1 cup broken pieces)
- ¼ cup water

Beat eggs, gradually adding sugar. Continue beating with electric mixer 10 to 15 minutes at high speed. (Batter will be very thick.) Gradually blend in flour with wire whisk or scraper, cutting through slowly just to blend. In double boiler, melt chocolate and water slowly over hot water and blend. Gently fold in chocolate. Butter 9-inch spring form pan and fill with batter. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes or until cake shrinks from sides of pan. Remove from ring immediately to cool. Split into 2 layers and fill and top with Twelfth Night Frosting.

TWELFTH NIGHT FROSTING

- 1½ cups heavy cream
- ¼ cup cocoa
- ¼ cup sugar
- Mint extract, few drops
- 1 can (29 ounces) cling peach slices
- ½ cup sliced almonds
- Sweet chocolate, grated

Combine heavy cream and cocoa; blend well and chill for 1 hour or longer before whipping (otherwise cream will not whip with the addition of cocoa). Whip until soft peaks form and flavor with sugar and 3 or 4 drops of mint extract. Drain peach slices. Reserve about 7 pretty slices for garnish. Combine whipped cream, fruit and almonds. Spoon ½ frosting on 1 layer. Top with remaining layer and frosting. Sprinkle with grated chocolate. Garnish with reserved peach slices. Refrigerate until serving time.

Planning holiday parties

Menu may need extra thought

Christmas holiday activities often center around food. Impromptu parties as well as formal gatherings gravitate around the table — whether buffet style or sit-down type.

But these various eating activites can prove diastrous to people on diets. For those with a poundage problem the food only means stricter diets after the holidays.

However, for heart and diabetic patients, irresistible temptations can be devastating — and the results could show up immediately instead of at next month's weigh-in.

For people on diabetic, low cholesterol or low salt diets, the Chicago area American Diabetes Association and the American Heart Association have several suggestions to help them through the holidays.

JEANNETTE WHITE of the American Diabetes Association said many diabetics generally don't have problems as long as they count everything they eat into their daily exchange diets.

"But with the overweight diabetic, we begin to have problems," she said. She said 80 per cent of all adult diabetics are also on reducing diets.

The most pronounced temptations occur with appetizers and cocktails. She suggested ordering a diet beverage, or club soda with a twist of lime, since it looks like a mixed drink. And appetizers like "free" fresh vegetables (carrot sticks, celery, cucumbers, pepper strips and cauliflower) are fine, she said. But fresh fruits need to be counted into the diabetic's diet.

"The meal itself is the least of the diabetic's problems," said Ms White.

BUT SHE SUGGESTS that the hostess keep in mind that plain meat and vegetables are best for diabetics to count into their daily diets.

"It also helps if the hostess knows what goes into the dishes like salads and sauces," she said. "The diabetic then has a better idea how to fit the food into his plan."

Also, sugar substitutes should be available and the cook might make up small dishes of the salads, desserts and sauces with the sugar omitted.

Nancy Wilson, nutritionist with the American Heart Association, said she thinks hosts and hostesses "really try to think of their diet-conscious friends when planning menus."

As with the diabetics, alcoholic beverages can be hard on the body's fatty tissues and should be avoided.

THE TRADITIONAL turkey is ideal for formal dinners because it is high in protein and low in fat — particularly if the skin and dark meat is avoided, she said.

Stuffing-balls cooked outside the turkey also reduce fat and can be prepared with or without salt. Unsalted sidedishes are also recommended, said Ms. Wilson.

Angelfood cake is best for the heart patient's dessert, she said. But a no-bake pumpkin pie can be made by using gelatin in much the same way cold consomme is prepared. And polyunsaturated oil should be used in the crust instead of shortening or lard. Also, because it is not baked, sugar substitute can be used instead of sugar, saving on a few calories if the dieter is watching calorie intake along with cholesterol or salt.

GRAVY STILL can be served, said Mrs. Wilson, first float ice cubes in the pan of juices to solidify the fat, then lift the hardened fat out and discard.

Cholesterol-free egg substitutes are available for recipes using eggs.

For further recipes information, readers may call the American Heart Association at FI 6-4675 and the American Diabetes Association at 943-8668.

Orange nut bread recipe works for heart patients

This orange nut bread recipe is suggested for holiday feasting for the calorie conscious. It was developed for the Los Angeles Affiliate of the American Heart Association.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Sift together two and a quarter cups of all-purpose flour; two and a half teaspoons of regular baking powder or three and a quarter teaspoons of low sodium baking powder; half a teaspoon of baking soda; three quarters teaspoon of salt (optional); and one cup of sugar. Stir in nuts. Combine one beaten egg with two tablespoons of vegetable oil (preferably polyunsaturated), three-fourths cup of orange juice and one tablespoon of grated orange rind. Pour liquid ingredients into dry mixture and stir only until smooth. Pour batter into an oiled nine and a half by five and a quarter by two and three-quarter inch loaf pan and cover with aluminum foil for the first 20 minutes of baking to retard cracking on top. Then, remove foil and bake for a total of 60 to 65 minutes. Remove from pan and cool on rack. (UPI)

Doctors write special diet book

by GAYNOR MADDOX

When you are in the hospital and on a special diet, the doctor and dietitian worry about what you eat. But when you are sent home and told to stick to your special diet, you may face a severe problem of what you should eat and how much of it. That question in the past 10 years has been answered partially by special diet books prepared by medical and nutritional experts.

"Today these diet books by known experts make it possible to carry on at home a hospital diet for such diseases as diabetes, kidney and heart trouble, etc." states Ralph A. Nelson of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

"These expertly written books may drive off the market those books by self-styled doctors and fad enthusiasts who often do harm by their imagined medical knowledge. This certainly is a boost for people entrusted with providing daily special food for themselves," says Dr. Nelson, who is associate professor of nutrition in the department of internal medicine.

DR. NELSON FURTHER says, "Food that is safe to eat, food a patient can enjoy, diets that are made up largely from regular supermarket items are all carefully woven into proper diets for specific diseases so that the patient at home can now look forward to 'a meal' rather than a collection of items that either bores or becomes almost inedible. That is why I actually am happy over these new developments. Today, the special know-how of the physician, nutritionist and dietitian are being used together and the patient can continue his hospital diet in his own kitchen."

"The Mayo Clinic Renal Diet Cookbook" recently has been published by Dr. Nelson and three other specialists at the Mayo Clinic.

When you consider that eight million people in the United States have some form of kidney disorder, the need for this book is obvious. Besides Dr. Nelson, the authors are Dr. James C. Hunt, Dr. Carl Anderson and Joyce Daly Margie, a research nutritionist formerly with the department of nutrition and nephrology of the Mayo Clinic. Dr. Anderson's specialty is renal (kidney) diseases. Dr. Hunt is chairman of the department of medicine. These specialists spent 10 years compiling "The Mayo Clinic Renal Diet Cookbook."

THE BOOK IS designed to educate patients under the direction of their physicians and dietitians to cope with their own dietary problems at home. In other words, to prepare food that is scientifically correct and still tastes good.

This 312-page comprehensive cookbook for kidney patients was developed in accordance with Mayo Clinic guidelines. Certain special products are used as well as common every day foods. The result is menus and recipes often available to the entire family.

("The Mayo Clinic Renal Diet Cookbook" is published by Golden Press, $10. All profits go to the National Kidney Foundation.)

by THE EDITORS OF CONSUMER REPORTS

(Sixth in a series)

Margarine and butter are, of course, primarily fats. Most margarines are manufactured mainly from partially hardened polyunsaturated fats, while butter consists mainly of saturated animal fat, derived from whole milk. Monounsaturated fat, which has no effect on blood cholesterol level, is another type of unsaturated fat.

While vegetable oils are, as a rule, high in polyunsaturated fats, the liquid oils usually become more saturated when they are hardened for use in margarine. Therefore, margarine can never be as unsaturated as the oils it's made from. But because margarine is made from vegetable oils, it's less likely to increase blood cholesterol levels than butter, which is largely saturated fat. What's more, certain margarines, such as those made from minimally hardened oils, may actually lower blood cholesterol levels.

CONSUMERS Union's medical consultants advise using margarine instead of butter — especially a margarine selected from the list included here. However, it should be emphasized that if an individual is on a cholesterol-lowering, low-saturated fat diet, the entire diet is important and involves much more than simply a choice of margarine over butter.

Margarine comes in a confusing variety of shapes, sizes and forms. Consumers Union tested a total of 45 brands of five different types — conventional sticks, soft, whipped, diet/imitation and liquid — and reported the results in the January 1975 Consumer Reports.

Conventional, soft and whipped margarines are at least 80 per cent vegetable-oil fat. Whipped margarine contains less margarine and more air, so a tablespoon of whipped contains only 67 calories instead of the 100 calories in conventional and soft margarines. Diet margarine has half as much fat and half as many calories (50 calories per tablespoon) as conventional and soft products. Butter has about the same amount of calories as conventional and soft margarines.

SOME MARGARINES — generally those made from corn, sunflower or safflower oils that have been minimally hardened — contain more of the kind of polyunsaturated fat that may help reduce the blood cholesterol level than do other margarines. In Consumers Union's tests, the margarines with the highest percentage of cholesterol-lowering polyunsaturated fats were: Promise Soft, Promise Food Club Soft, Squeeze Parkay Liquid, Soft Whipped Blue Bonnet, Parkay Soft, Whipped Parkay, Whipped Miracle Corn Oil and Mazola.

Unfortunately, having a high percentage of cholesterol-lowering polyunsaturated fats may affect a margarine's taste and smell. Consumers Union's testers rated the two types of Promise very poor for both taste and smell.

Margarine's strongest selling point had always been its lower price. That, however, has been changing. While the price of butter seemed to stabilize in 1974, margarine prices continued to rise. At present some margarines often sell for more than butter, so watch for sales of margarines.

Tree trimming party features rooms and rooms full of food

by LOIS SEILER

A tree-trimming party is a festive occasion in Tom and Mary Lou Bychowski's Mount Prospect home. Between 75 to 100 guests are invited, each bringing an ornament to hang on the Bychowski's family room tree. The living room tree is decorated with ornaments from other parties, which began in 1970.

Though the open house includes a complete dinner buffet and a wide selection of appetizers, Mary Lou makes most of the food only a day or two ahead of the event and often waits until the very day to finish the preparations. She works best under pressure, she said.

The fruit cake was made in November so it can mellow, but cookies are made just the week before. "Otherwise they might all disappear before the party," chuckled Mary Lou, mother of seven young children.

INVITATIONS AND name tags are handmade. The children, ages 10 years to five months, greet the guests in home-sewn coordinated Christmas outfits.

This year the family room tree is a blue spruce which Tom cut from the back yard. He takes care of all the liquid refreshments and helps Mary Lou chop vegetables. The older children help with cheese balls and other easy recipes.

Either champagne punch or Southern Comfort punch are offered in the family room while guests trim the tree.

Among the hot appetizers are sausage pineapple canapes, a chipped beef dip, meat balls in chili sauce, French fried cauliflower and Swiss cheese puffs on rye bread.

THE COLD appetizers include a cheddar cheese ball, marinated mushrooms, tuna pate, crabmeat ring, a wine cheese dip, appetizer cheese cake, herring and a variety of creamy dips, including green stuff, shrimp and onion served with an assortment of crackers and relishes for dipping.

The buffet table in the dining room is laden with an array of meats and salads. And trays of assorted cookies, cake, candy and nuts are available in the kitchen, along with coffee and spiced perculator punch, both perked in large coffee pots.

The party is scheduled from four to eight p.m. with the last guest departing around 11, said Mary Lou.

Mary Lou, who is in charge of the Couples Gourmet for St. Raymond's parish, likes to vary her Christmas party menu each year. However, she always includes certain recipes that have proved most popular with guests. These favorites follow below.

RASPBERRY MERINGUE KISSES

3 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon salt
3½ tablespoons raspberry gelatin
¾ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 cup miniature chocolate chips

Beat egg whites with salt until foamy; add gelatin and sugar gradually. Beat until stiff peaks form and sugar is dissolved. Mix in vinegar. Fold in chips.

Drop by teaspoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet. Make a tent with brown paper and arch over cookies so that it does not touch them. Bake at 250 degrees for 25 minutes; turn off oven and let cookies remain inside an additional 20 minutes. Remove from oven and cool. Store in an airtight container no longer than a week. Makes about 4 dozen.

SAUSAGE—PINEAPPLE CANAPES

(Smoky Links or Franks), cut in bite-size pieces
1 cup pineapple chunks
½ cup honey
1 jar maraschino cherries

Mix pineapple, pineapple juice and cherries with honey. Pour over sausage and heat thoroughly in pan. Serve in a chafing or fondue dish to keep warm.

GREEN STUFF DIP

2 cups sour cream
2/3 cup finely-chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped seeded unpeeled cucumber
2 tablespoons thinly-sliced green onion with tops
2 tablespoon freeze-dried snipped chives
1 teaspoons seasoned salt
Few drops green food coloring (optional)

TUNA PATE

1 8-ounce package softened cream cheese
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
½ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
2 6½-ounce cans tuna (in oil), drained

Blend ingredients together and pack into a four-cup mold. Chill at least three hours. Unmold on plate.

CRAB MEAT RING

1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
2 tablespoons cooking sherry
¾ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 2-ounce jar pimientos, drained and chopped
1 6-ounce package crab meat, thawed, drained and cut up
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
¼ cup snipped parsley

Sprinkle gelatin over water to soften; stir over hot water until dissolved. Beat into cream cheese until smooth. Stir in next five ingredients and 2 tablespoons parsley. Pour into 3-cup ring mold and refrigerate at least four hours. Turn out on plate and garnish with remaining parsley. Serve with crackers.

CHEDDAR CHEESE BALL

1 1-pound package sharp cheddar cheese, shredded
1 bunch green onion, chopped
1/3 teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon dry mustard
6 to 8 tablespoons mayonnaise

Combine ingredients thoroughly. Form into a ball and roll in parsley or crushed walnuts. May be made in advance; chill until served.

APPETIZER CHEESE CAKE

1 cup sour cream
¼ cup finely-chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely-chopped celery
2 tablespoons finely-chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
2 tablespoons finely-chopped onion
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
2/3 cup cheese cracker crumbs

Combine all ingredients except crumbs. Line a 2½-cup bowl with clear plastic wrap. Reserve some of the cracker crumbs for garnish.

Spread about ½ cup sour cream mixture in bottom of bowl. Sprinkle over this about ¼ cup crumbs. Repeat layers and chill overnight. Turn out on plate, garnish with remaining crumbs and serve with crackers.

CELERY-CRANBERRY RELISH

1 pound fresh cranberries
2 cups coarsely-chopped celery

1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Using coarse blade of food chopper, grind cranberries, celery and apple together. Stir in remaining ingredients; cover and refrigerate. Makes 4 cups.

LAYERED CRANBERRY APPLE SALAD

1 3-ounce package strawberry gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 16-ounce can whole cranberry sauce
1 apple
½ cup diced celery

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; stir in cranberry sauce. Chill until partially set.

Core and halve apple; reserve half of apple, rubbing cut surface with lemon juice. Cut remaining half in slices; arrange slices around bottom of 8-cup mold.

Fold celery into partially-set gelatin. Spoon over apple slices in mold. Chill until almost set. Meanwhile, prepare second layer:

1 3-ounce package lemon gelatin
1¼ cups boiling water
¼ cup lemon juice
1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 apple, cored and diced
½ cup salted cashew nuts, chopped

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; stir in lemon juice. Gradually add to cream cheese, beating smooth with electric beater. Chill until partially set. Stir in diced apple and nuts. Spoon over strawberry layer and chill until almost firm. Meanwhile, prepare third layer:

1 3-ounce package lime gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 8-ounce can grapefruit sections

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Drain grapefruit, reserving syrup, and add water to make ¾ cup. Add to gelatin. Chill until partially set. Dice reserved apple half. Fold apple and grapefruit into gelatin. Spoon over lemon jayer and chill until firm, at least six hours or overnight. Garnish with the following Frosted Cranberries:

Fresh cranberries
Granulated sugar

Beat egg white until frothy. Coat cranberries with egg white and then toss berries, a few at a time, in granulated sugar. Let dry in a shallow pan at room temperature.

HARLEQUIN BEAN POT

1 1-pound can red kdney beans, well-drained
1 1-pound can big lima beans, well-drained
1 1-pound can baby lima beans, well-drained
1 can (1 pound, 12 ounces) pork and beans, not drained
½ pound bacon, diced
4 large onions, cut in rings
3 cloves garlic, cut fine, or garlic salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup vinegar
¾ to 1 cup dark brown sugar

Place beans in large casserole or bean pot. Fry bacon until crisp. Add onion rings and garlic. Cook in bacon fat for a few minutes. Add dry mustard, vinegar and sugar. Cook over low heat 20 minutes.

Pour sauce over beans. Bake at 350 degrees for 60 to 75 minutes. Serves 12 to 16.

SPICED PERCOLATOR PUNCH

1 46-ounce can unsweetened pineapple juice
2 32-ounce bottles cranberry juice
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
¼ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons whole cloves
12 inches cinnamon sticks, broken in pieces
Peel from ¼ orange, cut in strips
3 cups light rum

Combine juices, 2 cups water, brown sugar and salt in 24-cup percolator. Place cloves, cinnamon and orange peel in coffee maker basket. Plug in and percolate. Just before serving, remove basket and add rum. Makes about 25 six-ounce servings.

A PAPER TENT prevents excessive browning for Mary Lou Bychowski's Raspberry Meringue Kisses. This Mount Prospect mother of seven makes hundreds of cookies and appetizers, as well as a full dinner buffet, for 75 to 100 guests invited to her family's yearly tree trimming party.

Here's good news! The Budget Food Store has lowered the price of beef! That's right! Prices have been lowered, on the average of 10¢ a pound, on nearly every beef item we sell. And that's a big help — especially now when you're facing the extra expense of holiday shopping.

Now it's even more economical to serve your family their favorite cuts of popular U.S.D.A. Good, Government Inspected Tender Cut Beef! Our tender cut new lower beef prices are the result of a more plentiful supply. Since beef costs less now, we can pass lower prices on to you, too. Of course, if you're not already familiar with Tender Cut Beef, (a leaner meat with less fat and waste for more good eating meat) now's the best time to try it.

Be sure to shop the Budget Food Shop this week. Our new lower prices are just one more example of how we help you save on all your food needs!

of Baldaccini at the meeting.

"It never got that far," he said. "I think the meeting was called because some things were bothering some aldermen and I think they have gotten them off their chests."

William Baldaccini

LAST MONTH, Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, and Sarlo charged Baldaccini failed to properly handle a problem involving the electrical system in the new intensive care unit at Holy Family Hospital.

They charged the matter involved "life safety" and that Baldaccini did not act quickly to resolve the problem.

At the time, Baldaccini said he was not immediately informed of the problem, and disputed that the matter involved life safety. It has since been corrected.

Bolek, Koplos and Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, also criticized Baldaccini recently when they discovered he planned to handle a private architectural project in Batavia. They said it was improper for the building commissioner to work at another job while employed by the city.

BALDACCINI SAID, however, he had received permission from city officials to work on the project before coming to work for the city in late 1973. He said he had worked on the project before that time.

Sources said some aldermen also think Baldaccini acted improperly in suspending two building department employes in connection with the problem at the hospital and the matter concerning his outside employment.

Finally, several aldermen were upset with Baldaccini because he recently took two federal officials to lunch and submitted a bill of $30 to the city.

Teachers, board resume talks

Teachers and board members in River Trails Dist. 26 will resume contract negotiations today, having reached no settlement at their latest bargaining session Monday.

"We feel progress is being made," said Board Pres. Leora Rosen. She refused, however, to comment on issues being discussed.

George Chase, president of the River Trails Education Assn., the teacher union, said both sides met for more than four hours Monday. Chase would not comment on issues covered in those talks.

Chase did say that teachers are "anxious to get it (the contract) settled. They're not real happy with the delay."

DIST. 26 TEACHERS are negotiating for the second time this year, having rejected a tentative settlement reached in September.

Teacher spokesmen said they were holding out for higher salaries they thought might be available had Gov. Daniel Walker's veto to state aid to education been overriden.

Now, however, teachers are looking for a better salary settlement than the approximate 7 per cent increase granted in the first tentative settlement, sources say. Extra-duty provisions and a reduction-in-force clause also are being sought, Chase said.

A reduction-in-force policy outlines a procedure for dismissing teachers should dropping enrollments warrant staff reductions. In the first contract settlement, board members had agreed to adopt a district policy on reduction in force. But teachers were unhappy with the progress of the policy committee's reduction-in-force proposal, and decided to push for a clause in the 1975-76 contract.

Computer to handle park finances

The Mount Prospect Park District has decided it is cheaper to computerize its financial records than hire a new bookkeeper.

The park board Monday authorized signing of a contract with the Services Bureau Co. to take over the district financial records for an estimated $307 a month.

Thomas T. Tayler, assistant park director, said the reason for the change is simple. "Add that up times 12 and tell me if you can get a bookkeeper for that price," he said.

PARK DIRECTOR Thomas W. Cooper said the payroll was put on a computer about four years ago, resulting in a considerable savings in time. He said the payroll now takes about half a day while it used to take about two days every month. A similar savings is expected in keeping the other financial records.

"This started about eight months ago," Cooper said, noting that the books were getting to be too much for one person to handle. He said the person now doing the books was taking work home with her and working overtime.

"The choice we had was to get a second person or to get our system in order," Cooper said.

Cooper said more and more districts are computerizing their books, citing at least five in the area that have already gone to this system.

"It gives you a real ready accessible means of getting other information if you decide you want it," Cooper said, noting that facts can be recalled from the computer's memory without difficulty.

District officials interviewed four companies before choosing Services Bureau.

Nimrod seeks nod for Congress

State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, confirmed Monday he will seek the Republican nomination for Congress in the 10th District.

Nimrod said he waited for a candidate that could be accepted by the voters to emerge but none did. Former congressman Samuel H. Young of Glenview and Daniel Hales of Wilmette already have announced they would seek the nomination and run against U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th. Mikva beat Young in 1974.

Nimrod said he hopes to get the endorsement of all of the GOP township committeemen in the district Nimrod is the Niles Township GOP Committeeman.

He also indicated that he would not have to resign from his seat in the State Senate to enter the primary elections.

DR. THOMAS KIM, director of the Northwest Community Hospital intensive care unit since July, believes that well trained medical personnel are the most important factor in saving lives.

People not machines save lives of critically ill: Kim

by LINDA PUNCH

Dr. Thomas Kim fights a daily battle with death.

The new director of Northwest Community Hospital's intensive-care unit, Dr. Kim comes in contact with most of the critically ill patients in the hospital. He said people, not fancy medical equipment, are the most important factor in saving lives.

"A lot of hospital people equate good equipment with good medicine. They forget that it takes a good doctor or nurse to use the machines. Most ICU patients are hooked up to various pieces of equipment for monitoring and therapeutic purposes, what is important is who is watching it," he said.

MOST OF THE STAFF working in the intensive-care unit receive more specialized training, Dr. Kim said, noting that critically ill patients require "more of a one-to-one patient-nurse relationship than those less critically ill. You have to do more things for them."

The majority of ICU patients suffer from some form of heart or lung problem, he said. They include accident victims suffering from multiple injuries, patients in shock or in a coma and patients recovering from neurosurgical or vascular surgery.

"The intensive-care unit is a very rough place. Psychologically, the environment is very stressing for everybody — patients, nurses, doctors and the family," Dr. Kim said.

The hospital staff "has to have more control" in the intensive-care unit so "we really can't make things pleasant for everybody. Patient conditions dictate the priority," he said.

Many people have misconceptions about the intensive-care unit, including the use of respirators, Dr. Kim said.

"I don't like the term respirator — the only one who has made a respirator is God. These machines are really ventilators — they simply support the breathing mechanism of the body. They really don't keep people alive. You need other supportive measures for that," he said.

Many people think patients on ventilators will die if the equipment is turned off, but Dr. Kim said this belief is "not true."

"VENTILATORS ARE an everyday supportive measure. Most of the people on the machines survive and go home," he said.

"The better we get in critical-care medicine, the better chance we have to prolong life. But in some cases, we're prolonging the agony and suffering for both patients and family since many terminally-ill people are brought to the hospital to die. In this society, there is no place to die outside the hospital," he said.

Parks, firm sued over boy's death

The Golf-Maine Park District and a Des Plaines asphalt company are being sued in connection with the May 22 death of a city youth killed in a construction accident.

Filing the $630,000 suit was Benjamin Friedman, 9349 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, father of 11-year-old Joel Friedman, killed in a construction accident south of Emerson Road and Sumack Street in Maine Township.

The suit names the park district, Skokie Valley Asphalt Co., 1228 Harding St., and the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago as defendants.

The site was leased from the Catholic archdiocese as a dumping ground for loose dirt.

Young Friedman this spring was crushed beneath the wheels of a dump truck operated by the asphalt company at the site.

More to singles' life than parties, students learn

Schuttler, said she liked the open discussion in class. "When you think about getting your own place, you think it's going to be great. You don't think about the bad parts. We talk about both sides here."

They also realized there is more to a single's kitchen than beer and pretzels. They learned some cooking techniques by baking a turkey, making turkey a la king with the leftovers and baking a meat loaf.

It's every man (or woman) for himself in this class.

After all, when you're a single — that's the way it is.

Nursing home seeks donation of goods

The Ballard Nursing Home in Des Plaines is seeking donations of materials that can be used to occupy the time and interests of its elderly residents.

The skilled care facility, which opened two months ago, is encouraging contributions of scrap fabrics, yarn, magazines, books, records and playing cards, said Karen Mycanka, activities director.

"The center opened with almost nothing in the way of materials. There's not enough budgeted for all the things we need and most of the donations so far have been from families of the people here," she said.

Donations can be delivered to the nursing home, at 9300 Ballard Rd., or interested contributors can call 299-0182.

There are 53 senior citizens from Chicago and the Northwest suburbs receiving special care at the privately owned facility.

Review course set for elderly drivers

The next senior citizen driver review course sponsored by Elk Grove Township will be Jan. 7, 14 and 21 at township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The classes, which begin at 9 a.m., are specifically designed to help senior citizens pass their driving tests. The classes are conducted by volunteer senior citizens who have been trained by the Illinois Secretary of State's office.

Two additional courses are scheduled for Feb. 4, 11 and 18 and March 3, 10 and 17. Reservations may be made and further information is available by calling the township office at 437-0300.
